The Place of the Christian Association in College Life.

Robert E. Speer has said: "Every man needs two things; first, a standard of right character; and second, power to enable him to realize this standard in his own life." This is just as true of the student as it is of the man grown to full stature. If there is anyone that needs a "standard of right character" it is the student, for only as is his standard during college days will be his standard during life. But where is he to find this standard, and where is he to find the power to make it his own if he does find it? It must be found outside of himself, neither is there power within himself to lift himself up to it, should he find it, any more than there is power within himself to lift himself from off the floor by his own boot straps.

The college curriculum provides standards of mental and of physical character. Thus two of the great trinity are provided for. But what of the third, and equally, if not more important member of the trinity? It is to supply this spiritual character that the Christian associations have their place in college life.

We often hear in this matter of fact day the question: "How are the Christian associations going to measure up to their responsibility in this matter?" The answer comes quick and clear: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord."

The first day that the halls of the college begin to resound with the tread of students is the time for the sowing of the seed that will bring forth an abundant harvest in days to come.

The student that is away from home, and especially the one that is away for the first time, feels very lonely and is keenly conscious of the fact that he has no social ties to bind him to any of those around him. By the skillful use of an evening at the beginning of the term the new students and the older ones as well are made to feel and realize that there is a heart that beats in sympathy and love with theirs. Be sure they will judge you by your first impressions of you and if you do not measure up to the standard whose fault is it if they drift away from right living and right ideals?
Christian associations serve as a point of union for all ages, classes and conditions. The college man is the most clannish of all men and is constantly found forming exclusive sets, cliques and societies into which a few chosen ones are admitted, leaving out the vast majority. He is even prone to be found deep in some class scheme or petty society plot to get the upper hand of some other class or society. But with the associations all meet on a common level. Freshman and sophomore, junior and senior, college and academic students stand shoulder to shoulder fighting the battles of the Lord. There they meet and try to defeat the devil and bring his works to naught. The aristocracy of character becomes the only prerequisite for fellowship and the man who is working his way through college stands on an equal with the man whose bank account is unlimited.

In this day of rapid living when no man can live unto himself, but must in some small way affect every other being and in turn be affected by them, the Christian associations, through their secretaries become mighty factors in the broadening of man's mind and the deepening of interest in kindred institutions of learning. Their summer conferences are likewise mighty factors in the enlargement of the students' sympathies and the deepening of the responsibility that rests upon him when he becomes cognizant of the fact that he does not live unto himself merely, but does, and in a vital way, affect everyone with whom he comes in contact.

But in order to be such mighty factors in the college life the Christian associations must stand for something. Indeed they do stand for something, and that something amounts to more than one or two things.

In the first place they stand for the best type of devotional life. They preach, and practice too, the morning watch. If there is anything that makes the day's troubles easy to bear, it is the giving to God of the first few minutes of the day when our bodies and minds are restful and keen. Only those who follow it systematically day after day are able to tell of its wonderful benefits.

In the second place they stand for a more systematic study of that book of books, the Holy Bible. The value of this can never be measured in this world, but in eternity only will we see the results of this important branch of association work. So much has been said and written about Bible study and its importance that I will only say, "study to show thyself approved unto God."

The Christian associations stand for all of those things which appeal to manly men and womanly women. They stand for all the virtues that go towards the making up of a character that is to be like the character of the Master's. They stand for that sort of a character that will not permit "dirty" work in an athletic game, or cheat in an examination. Honesty in everything and in every place is one of their many mottoes. The association men and women are the men and women that today are taking the lead in athletics, in society work and in every department of college life. They are the men and women for whom the world has a very large place and whom it ever stands ready to receive. At the same time that they are developing this character they are developing business and executive ability; drawing out originality and genius, thus consecrating thought and hands to the Master's service.

In the midst of all the distractions of the college day, with all of its worries, its cares and its troubles, the Christian associations stand out like great lighthouses to point the way to the harbor of safety, which is none other than Christ, the Lord, who stands ever ready to hear the cry of "whosoever will" that comes unto Him. They stand as a mighty bulwark to shield the students from the enemy that would wreck their lives and ruin their characters.

Truly the place of the Christian associations in college life is very large. But there is one more thing for which they stand that is going to tell mightily for God in the years that are coming.

They stand for missions, mission study and aggressive evangelism. In every college they have their mission study classes and are endeavoring to obtain some definite knowledge of the world-wide mission fields. The student volunteer band is today supplying the missionaries for the churches. Under the leadership of consecrated men and women they are rallying to the battle-cry: "The evangelization of the world in this generation."

The place which the Christian associations occupy in college life is indeed large, but there is a still larger place waiting for them. "Let us then be up and doing, still achieving—still pursuing" until the body, mind and spirit shall stand before their Maker, each one complete in the other two.

HARRY L. ALLEN.

"IT IS MY PURPOSE IF GOD PERMIT TO BECOME A FOREIGN MISSIONARY."

The student volunteer movement is the recruiting agency for foreign missions among the students, and although not bound together by any constitution, but simply by a singleness of purpose among its members, is one of the strongest Christian organizations in the world.

The "Volunteer Band" of our university has been very active this year by personal individual appeal from volunteers and others to sign the above declaration.

The band holds a regular meeting each Thursday now and up to the present time have been very faithfully attended.

At various times during the year the volunteers have held church and league services in the churches of Tacoma and Seattle.

The intense interest shown by the students outside the band has contributed much to the success this year. A purpose is a purpose and nothing nourishes it quite so much as to get others to join it.

Review of Year's Work.

Y. W. C. A.

In reviewing the work for the year there are many phases of it which must be taken into consideration. The interest of the association has increased very perceptibly over that of last year and the membership is increasing from time to time. During the year the Y. W. Bible class has met each week for the study of Old Testament characters. The young women meet with the young men for mission study, but the first regular meeting of each month is also devoted to missions.

The entire work of the association has been greatly improved by the visit of the secretaries. We were especially glad of the visit of the international secretary, Miss Kyle, for it is very seldom that an international secretary comes to the colleges of the Northwest. Miss Gage, state secretary, spent several days with us and gave many good suggestions for the work.

The social life of the young women is one phase of the association work which we have tried not to neglect and which is, to a certain extent, very necessary for a successful association. There have been several small gatherings during the year, some of which were given jointly with the Y. M. C. A.

Another very important phase of our work is the finances. They are somewhat below what the association had hoped for, but the young women have every reason to believe that by the aid of their loyal supporters they will be able to meet all expenses as well as to send the delegation to the convention at Gearhart in September.

Ethel Cotter.

Y. M. C. A.

The work of our Y. M. C. A. has been very satisfactory this year. An advance has been made in the Bible and the mission study work. We have two classes in the latter with an enrollment of twenty-two. As this is the first year that a successful mission study class has been conducted we are much encouraged with this showing.

More interest is shown in the Bible study work also than heretofore. There are five classes with thirty-four enrolled. In addition to the regular weekly devotional meeting we have also held ten-minute prayer meetings each noon, which have proved helpful to those who attend.

We have had a substantial increase in the membership and the finances are in good shape. There is a great need that each member of the association shall feel his responsibility more keenly, and when this condition is realized much greater results will be seen than we even now rejoice in.

Visions and sounds of Gearhart are beginning to be seen and heard and we hope to send the largest representation that the U. P. S. has ever been able to send.

Each year brings new and greater opportunities to our association, as well as to each individual. Then let every man throw aside his collar and gloves, and having equipped himself for the contest, struggle for the eternal prize.

BOOST THE CONFERENCES.

No fraternity or other society has attained such a firm footing in college life as the Christian associations. No college of any importance can now be found where these organizations do not exist. When we remember that the Y. M. C. A has been organized but a few years and the Y. W. C. A a still shorter time, this widespread growth seems truly marvelous.

The reasons for such an increase are many. It is a movement that attracts the best people from all classes of college life. Men and women of ability are to be found foremost in its ranks. A glance at the delegates to one of the great student conferences is sufficient to explode the idea that the religion of Jesus Christ is something fit only for old women and children. At Gearhart in 1904 the leading students of the conference were among the most popular at their own schools. They were prominent in every branch of school life. The captain—Spears—of Whitman’s football team, leading football and track men from the U. of W., a winning debater from Pullman and the winner of the interstate prohibition contest may be taken as fair samples of the men at that conference. The same was true in 1905 and will be the case again this year.

The value of such a conference cannot be estimated. Everyone that has attended a student conference declares it the greatest inspiration obtainable. At one of these great gatherings it is possible to obtain a vision of one’s opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. To mingle for ten days with the representative men of the colleges of four states is in itself an inspiration; while the influence of the speakers of the conference is beyond description. The unanimous decision of those that have been to Gearhart is that it is too great to be described.

When we realize the value of our opportunity we should boost the Gearhart conferences as never before. The cost of sending delegates is comparatively small and should not be given as an excuse for a small delegation. No better investment can be made than to send a delegate to Gearhart. It means a better student for next year.
better spiritually and every other way. It also pays in a financial way. The men that went to Gearhart two years ago have more than returned the amount given them by the association and in every respect have shown the value of sending men to such gatherings.

Let every man and woman in school boost Gearhart. Nothing can equal it as a producer of true college spirit. Both associations should send larger delegations than last year and prepare for greater growth therefrom.

BACHELOR’S SOLILOQUY

To wed! To love! O joy divine!
To end my woe by launching fearless
On the matrimonial sea! But there’s the rub;
For on the waters of that treacherous sea
Full many a goodly bark is wrecked and lost.
Peaceful and calm may seem the surface at the start;
But ere the golden honeymoon be fully orb’d,
Bathing in mellow light the rippling main,
A sudden storm may rise, engulfing waves Roll high and dash to hell’s profoundest depths
The fairest and highest hopes of Heaven.
Full oft the voice that sweetly breathes Into the ear the soft angelic strains of love Proves at the last the vengeful siren’s song — And lure’s to shoals where dire destruction waits.
Many, forsooth, broken in purse and sick at heart
May seek the sheltering haven of divorce;
But there to forever vent their spiteful spleen
And curse their fate that they—ever embarked.
And much the major portion of mankind,
Bound, like old Prometheus, with their gall Daily consumed by their eternal pecking spouse,
Endure their worse than pains of Tartarus.

Sad is the fated lot of humankind
That in our discontent with semi-paradise, Striving in vain to gain a higher heaven. We plunge into the dark abyss of deepest hell.
Yet, such is life! To wed or not to wed? Aye, that is the question, but little does it reek. Whichever evil I may choose. — A. L. MARSH.

CONFERENCE MEANT

To attend summer conference means to personally know many beautiful Christian lives, to form high ideals and ambitions; to come face to face with the vital questions of life, to realize the need of Christian workers, and to feel that "not by might nor by power" but by the Spirit of God each one may have a share in His work.

A. J. HOLKER.

Gearhart gave to me a higher ideal of the Christian man. Coming into contact with men who were living the highest type of manhood I could not help admiring or desiring to follow closer the Master. I received inspiration and ideas whose value I will not know until eternity.

E. V. SHEAFE.

Hourly companionship with bright and lovable young women of like aims and purposes with one's self, daily intimate association with men and women who have climbed the heights and who reach down helping hands to their sisters on the slopes below, meeting God face to face in the wonders of forest and sea—that is an association summer conference.

VINNIE A. PEASE.

The student's conference at Gearhart was a rich feast to my spiritual welfare. The necessity of consistent service for the Master was brought to bear upon me more forcibly than ever before. I can never forget many things which appealed to me, nor fail to live a better and a more consecrated life for my Saviour.

JASPER NOYES.

Gearhart meant to me a vision of Jesus Christ as the Master of my life; a vision of all the great principles for which He stands and a vision of the terrible need of the now Christian world. It meant the ten best days of my life to come and to go.

The Boyer Lit Society.

The Boyer Literary Society has been doing splendid work during the past month. The regular weekly meetings have been most interesting and gratifying to all concerned. The members have shown increased enthusiasm and all feel that they have good reason for being most proud of their society. Besides the regular monthly open program the girls gave an "April fool" program on March 30, and had the H. C. S boys as their guests. After the program the boys were introduced to a genuine Boyer spread in the library. The evening closed with college songs and society yells.

H. C. S.

One of the greatest factors that go to make up college life is the societies, and any student is unfortunate who has not the privilege of belonging to one. We consider ourselves very fortunate because we are H. C. S. members and are having a share in making a greater society. We are not content with having made it the strongest society in school, but we are striving to set the literary standard of our university where it certainly should be. It is the steady, hard work of our members that has brought us so many honors and given us our place at the head of all societies. The H. C. S. has surprises in store for the students which we think will be appreciated.

PHILOMATHEON BRIEFS.

The programs by the society have been especially excellent and have been attracting many visitors. There has been a most helpful combination of dialogues, readings, tableaux and music.

The Irish program on the 19th of March gave us a vivid picture of the Emerald Isle, and the amusing anecdotes were characteristic. A male trio composed of Messrs. Kendall, Gambill and Scott sang that pretty melody, "My Wild Irish Rose." The debate for the evening was very enthusiastic. The question of home rule for Ireland, though not new, is one which is nevertheless interesting.

The April fool's program was a decided success, especially when the April fool's quartette so completely deceived the audience, and even the critic. The Indian legends by Mr. Ol-san gave us many new ideas in regard to the significance of certain well known points of interest. The question of woman's suffrage was discussed by Misses Pease and Bullock. A lively general discussion ensued in which it seemed everyone was prepared to take part, although time did not suffice for all. The extemporaneous speeches have been especially good and we are aiming to become fluent speakers on a moment's notice. The evening's entertainment was closed by a charming and effective tableaux giving the aim of the Philo society, "Lovers of Learning," represented by Miss McGandy and Miss Terry.

THE SONG OF THE PHILOS FOR THE SPRING TERM.

Oh, work, work away,
From working never ceasing;
Get busy there, be ever fair,
But work, work away.
Work, work, new knowledge to pursue,
But still be ever straight and true
And Philos sure will smile on you,
If you work, work away.

March 8 was the date of the first game between the above teams. It was played on the U. P. S. floor. The fact that no men were present made no depreciable difference in the rooting. The U. P. S. lineup was changed in the second half. The lineup in the first half was as follows:

U. P. S.—Terry and Grumbling, forwards; Hooston and Brown, centers; Clulow and Beil, guards.

Whitworth—McMasters and Dennis, forwards; Earle and Mythyng, centers; Frances and Hoyt, guards.

Whitworth—McMasters and Paul, forwards; Mitchell, center; Colbert and Sanders, guards.

U. P. S., 27; Whitworth, 8.

March 13 one of the largest crowds that has ever been in the gym gathered to see the second game between the above teams. The U. P. S. boys had been practicing diligently and went into the game with the determination to win. The Whitworth five was equally determined, but were outclassed by our superior team work and basket throwing. At the end of 40 minutes' playing the score stood, U. P. S., 27; Whitworth, 8. The lineup was as follows:

U. P. S.—Wright and Crockett, forwards; Donaldson, center; Nicol and Olsan, guards.

Whitworth—McMasters and Paul, forwards; Mitchell, center; Colbert and Sanders, guards.

U. P. S., 19; Vashon, 14.

March 16 a lively crowd of rooters accompanied the U. P. S. team on a chartered boat to Vashon to square accounts with the Islanders. The U. P. S. boys went into the game with all the ginger engendered by their victory a few nights previous. The lineup was as follows:

U. P. S.—Wright and Knox, forwards; Donaldson, center; Nicol and Olsan, guards.

Vashon—Thompson and Tolman, forwards; Reynolds, center; Churchill and Stieklin, guards.

March 23 in the fastest game ever played by the U. P. S. five the Tacoma High School was defeated on the Y. M. C. A. floor. The game was a surprise to the High School boys. In the first half the High School boys had an easy lead of six points. But in the second half the U. P. S. boys warmed up to their work, tied the score, and when the whistle blew were four points ahead. Lineup:

U. P. S.—Wright and Knox, forwards; Donaldson, center; Nicol and Olsan, guards.

High School—Threr and Davis, forwards; Duryea, center; Brown and Collier, guards.

On the same evening occurred the second game between the U. P. S. girls and the High School girls which resulted in a victory for the High School girls by a score of 10 to 2. This gives each of the above teams one game. Much interest will be manifest in the next game, as it decides the championship of the girls' teams of the city.

The baseball boys are out practicing several days each week and are striving to maintain the excellent record made in athletics thus far this year. The lineup will probably be as follows:

Walker, catcher; Coffman, pitcher; Kennard, pitcher; Shellenberger, first base; Wright, second base; Ball, shortstop; Donaldson, third base; Newly, right field; Nicol, center field; Kendal, left field.

Worth Remembering

The Stone-Fisher store, for fifteen years a good dry goods store, has developed--

From the ugly duckling it has turned out to be the beautiful swan--

And it is more than a dry goods store.

It is a department store in the best interpretation of the term.

In addition to the stock of dry goods and carpets and millinery (all of which have been enlarged) it will sell--

- Candies.
- Soda Water.
- China and House Furnishings.
- Cut Glass, Silverware.
- Shoes, Trunks and Grips.
- Drugs and Drug Sundries, Medicines.
- Pictures and Picture Frames.

In about a month the Furniture store will be ready.

Teas and Coffees, Delicatessen and Bake Shop goods will also be sold.

Some of these departments are by no means complete, but they're being rapidly brought nearer to our ideals.

Rome wasn't built in a day. We're a long way from being satisfied as yet.

It isn't always meal time when you see the cooks coming.

* * *

Dr. Foster. "This man (Prof. B--) reminds me of a man I used to have in my prayer meeting, that set his tongue going and went off and left it."
