MEMORIES OF THE OLD DORM
By Senator Davis

Of the buildings of the old campus proper, these three yet remain: the Old Dormitory and Student Building, and the Boy's Dormitory. Pres. Todd's residence was purchased from the Association in 1902. The Old Dormitory was ready for the students in the fall. This building has been indebted by the old example of the College and has been reserved for some practical purpose, and remembered as a comfort and convenience. The Boys' Dormitory was built in the fall of 1907, with the same idea of the College remaining in the future; it was begun in the summer of 1905 and completed in 1906. In the College Assembly, the students reflect that the old dormitories will come often to remember, and will form the nucleus of their former self-culture, — to a full and harmonious development. The Church, and the maximum of self-culture, — to a full and harmonious development. The Church, and the maximum of self-culture, — to a full and harmonious development.
