"LOGGERS vs. ARMY; 2:30 SATURDAY"

"By Mike"

Warning—If one more guy goes on about how the Loggers are going to win this game, they're going to have to send the Holy Sea of Montana, the biggest guy on this team, out to patrol the sidelines and keep the coach from changing his mind.

This means you, Hurst Potts. Hurst Potts: It's your last chance to show the world what Montana is. . . .

And Montana is studying up—on how to spell the Russian. This guy Czar is too much in this game. . . .

Might as well start a commission in Romansics at the college. For personal reasons this department will refrain from voicing its selection for instructor.

TRAVELogue

Starting early in June, our Hero visited Bolivia, Franklin, and thoroughly studying the tracts of Pete Carver's psychology. However, this past vacation, when made the Tower of Pisa lean, and when he reached the Alps, Winneke he had striven to 182 pounds.

While at Monte Carlo Mike Thrumsen met a very dejected Englishman burdened with the loss of 500 pounds at Poker.

(Our instruction of the Unlearned)

No. 2. Contrary to reports, football and basketball are still not a serious trifle to our society. We recently received a note from a friend of ours who has seen the games several years now. He says that the boys are still trying to win, and the girls are still back again in school and thinking of other extremities.

Fagging Pages Supports "Adams"

"It may interest some students to learn that at the recent Stockings' Road Meeting they had a collection of books. These books were advertised in a recent issue of the Night Owl. Some of the books were bought by a number of students who were interested. These books were paid for in cash. The students who bought the books were very pleased with them.

WHERE HISTORY, SPORTS AND LEARNING MEET

Could it be the biggest college football game that has not even happened yet? Do you remember the 1926 game between Washington and Oregon?

Washington, the University of Washington, was a powerhouse in those days. They had a great coaching staff, excellent facilities, and a strong fan base. When the two teams played against each other, it was always a highly anticipated game.

However, the game was canceled just two days before it was scheduled to take place. What was the reason for this cancellation? There are different stories about it, but one of the most popular explanations is that the Oregon team was in trouble with some legal issues, and the Washington team decided to withdraw from the game to avoid any distractions.

The absence of this game was a significant loss for both teams and their fans. It was a year when many memorable events happened, and the lack of this game is a reminder of how important sports can be in bringing people together.

Despite the cancellation, the anticipation and excitement of the game remained. Many fans still refer to it as a legendary game, and there are stories and memories about it that continue to be shared even today.

Do you remember any other high school or college football games that have been canceled or postponed? How do you think the cancellation of these games affected the teams and their fans? Do you think there should be more transparency and communication in such situations?

The Farm Electrical
Of the six and a half million farm homes in this country, only half a million have electricity.
Still, the advantages of electricity are widely known.
But there is more to farm electrification than the installation of motors, lights and heaters. Current must be brought to the farm, and that means many miles of transmission line,
supporting poles, transformers, and adequately generating equipment.
Slowly but surely the electrification of American farms is taking place. As farmers learn how to use electricity, rural service lines reach out farther and farther into open country.
Six million farms to be electrified! Here is a wast and virgin field for the application of electricity, with countless opportunities for college-trained men in the technical and commercial phases of this undertaking. And for the college-trained student and others planning future life in rural areas, it means a better, happier life-time now in the making.
