College and high school publications are continually urging students to support school activities. The plan is general in all schools. The papers commonly develop a greater student body interest in the football games at the time of the school year, and this column might well fall into the category of the A. S. C. P. S. support of the Loggers football team.

Last Saturday, really the first intercollegiate football game for Puget Sound, saw a little handful of students that would have been a disgrace to any institution. The only thing common to this match was the presence of a band. The game was played outside of the football team, and the band did not perform, but its efforts were not lost on the students.

One reason advanced for the poor student body showing was that most of the students are freshmen and that when the College draws most of its students from the outside then they may expect further efforts. This was especially the case in the football season.

"All together, the theater proved to be a great success, and we are sure that Scott-covered students will enjoy the picture when it comes around.

The picture was released by Sound Film, the same company that provided the music. It is recommended to all members of the college community, regardless of their affiliation with any particular club or group. This film is a must for all college students and will leave a lasting impression on those who see it.

Football Season is Here

ON OUR HOSPITALITY

The writer of this article wishes to ask a question. Are the entire bodies of student journalists in the United States of America, with one or two exceptions, not aware of the fact that there is an educational institution in this country which offers hospitality to students at a very reasonable price? I believe that the answer is yes. The large majority of students who have not been to the University of British Columbia have heard of it. But even those who have not have heard of it have heard of the hospitality which the University offers. And then there is the fact that the University is not far from the center of the city. It is within easy walking distance of the hotel and restaurant district.

Does anyone know of anything comparable? If the answer is yes, then the writer would like to hear about it.

OTHER OPINIONS

At a recent convention of student journalists, the group discussed many problems and facts that influence the university newspaper. Among these was the question of how to get the student body to read the newspaper. The group decided that the best way to do this is to have good reporters who can write well. The student who writes well is more likely to be believed by the student body than the student who writes poorly. The student who writes poorly is more likely to be believed by the student body than the student who writes poorly. The student who writes poorly is more likely to be believed by the student body than the student who writes poorly.

It is hoped that this will be helpful to the student who is interested in getting the student body to read the newspaper.

A QUIET LIBRARY

Students are beginning to become indifferent to the noise and commotion that seems to be a common feature of the library. It is time that something should be done to make the library a place where students can study.

Some students feel that the library is too noisy and that they cannot study. Others feel that the library is not big enough and that they cannot study.

The library is a place where students can study and learn. It is not a place where students can socialize.

A QUIET TIME

Students who wish to study in the library should do so during the hours when the library is quiet. This will enable them to study and learn.

Dr. Martin gives Experience

A service for thoughtless and inconsiderate people can be done by the University of British Columbia and yet as far as it is possible to do so, it is considered that the University is not doing enough.

The Trail is a little old, slightly gray, and has a somewhat worn look. But it is still here. It has been a faithful servant of the students of the University for many years.

"Yes, we have our little private room of history. That's where we meet every week and we discuss the news of the world."

This is the Trail for the Home Folks. It is a newspaper that is read by students in the University. It is a newspaper that is read by students in the University.
