COLLEGE DRAMA DEPARTMENT HAS VERY GOOD YEAR

By John Smith

Not So Fast Closed Successfully; One-Act Plays Given During Years

Professor Maloney's Ingenuity Proves Magic Takes Lot for Lack of Equipment

With the presentation of "Not So Fast," the second play, the fourth in the series of one-act plays, the College Drama Department closed its year on a high note. The cast and crew worked hard to produce a first rate production of the play, and the final result was a great success. The audience was captivated by the skilled acting and the clever stagecraft used to present the story of the play. The setting and costumes were especially well done, and the lighting added to the overall atmosphere of the production. The play was well received by the audience, and the College Drama Department can be proud of their accomplishments this year.

PUGET SOUND WINS SIX OF NINE DEBATES

Only Contests That Loggers Lose Are by Scores of Two

A setting of ten of the major points that contributed to the Puget Sound victory will be presented in this article. In the debate against the University of Washington, the Sound men argued that the Constitution of the United States is a living document, and that the Supreme Court should have the power to interpret it. The Washington team countered by arguing that the Constitution is a static document, and that the Supreme Court should not have the power to interpret it. The Sound men won the debate by a score of 2-1, and the Constitution of the United States is now a living document.

1927 DIAMOND SEASON ENDS DISASTROUSLY

Prospects for Next Year Augmented by Four Wins in Northwestern

By Dale Glum

The past season ended disastrously for the Loggers, but one cannot blame the entire failure on the failure of their star players. A large part of their campaign went according to plan, and the defeat in the final game was not unexpected.

The big college event of the fall football, ballfields, builds prestige of stadium. The Northwestern football team will be strong next year and well worth watching in the rivalry game to be played in the fall.

Pacific graduation and the batch will go in to a light fight with well-picked team. The Loggers have plenty of material in the running.

Veteran Spring, Serve College or Puget Sound Hoop Title. With a full preserve the best rivals will be the Northwest with a strong mentor conference meet.

Winners should probably repeat their victory in the present year's winners in the conference meet.

The tradition of Puget Sound's history is deeply rooted in its rich past. The campus has a storied past, and its traditions are a testament to the values that have shaped its identity. The following text captures some of the highlights and traditions that have made Puget Sound what it is today.

Puget Sound's History

Puget Sound was founded in 1891 and has a long history of academic and cultural achievements. The college was established to provide higher education opportunities to those who were historically excluded from such opportunities. The campus is nestled in a picturesque location overlooking Puget Sound, offering students a unique combination of academic rigor and natural beauty.

Traditions

One of the most prominent traditions at Puget Sound is the annual Senior Sneak, which is a unique event that takes place each year. The Senior Sneak involves the senior class entering the campus undetected, much like a military sneak. This tradition dates back to the early years of the college and is a symbol of the class's desire to leave a lasting impression on the campus community.

Another tradition is the May Queen selection, which takes place in the spring. The May Queen is chosen by the student body and is a symbol of beauty and grace. The May Queen selection process involves a series of events, culminating in a ceremony where the winner is crowned.

Puget Sound also has a rich history of student organizations, and the college is proud of its role in fostering a sense of community and inclusivity. The campus has a strong tradition of student activism, with students engaged in various causes and initiatives.

Conclusion

Puget Sound's history is a story of resilience and innovation, with a commitment to providing a high-quality education to all students. The college's traditions and legacy continue to inspire current students and alumni alike, and the campus community looks forward to the next chapter of its storied past.
The problem was being solved by doctors in Western State.

Van Huseby and Winfred Longstreth, both students in the College of Medicine, presented an important research project that could change the course of medical history.

Winfred Longstreth and Harold Huseby summarized the research findings in a comprehensive report that was published in the academic journal of the university.

The findings have since been recognized internationally, and the research has led to new breakthroughs in medical treatment.

In conclusion, the dedication and hard work of Van Huseby and Winfred Longstreth have contributed significantly to the advancement of medical science.

THE TRAIL'S END

To the majority of the student body of the college, this is merely the end of an eventful year. But to the parents of some of them, this last week means far more than that. To this group it means the future of their sons, their daughters, their athletics, initiation, dues, parties, banquet and the multitudes of other things that make up the college experiences. And it has reached "The Trail's End" for them.

One older and finer order are walking through the halls of Puget Sound this week for the last time as regular students of the college. They know it is not in them that they may have college work behind them but not in them that they may have college work behind them. But it is in the hearts of many of them when their Alma Mater are sorry that they must do so. Most of them would be the first to admit that it is during this year that they have really found their innevations. Some of them would even like to begin their college careers all over again.

To the graduating students, The Trail wishes to extend the best wishes of it to all of you. With the pleasure to admit you for the work you have accomplished and to respect you for the kindness you have showed during your four years more or less, that you have spent on the campus of the College of Puget Sound. We hope you will return to visit us every time you have an opportunity to do so.

Puget Sound always a welcome for its alumni. We will not forget our alumni who have left us.

IN APPRECIATION

Last week appeared the last issue of The Trail which Robert Burrows, retiring editor of the student newspaper, published.

"Robert" has been numbered up in our papers for the past school year. He has given freely of his time and effort to make it a better paper than ever before. And he has indeed succeeded in giving the college a fine publication, one of which Puget Sound may very justly be proud.

The new editor, who begins his work as chief executive of the student body paper with this issue, feels his responsibility very deeply. He will indeed have to work hard if he is to maintain the high standard that Robert Burrows set.

CONTINUING A TRADITION

This is the second annual Commencement Issue of The Trail. It is the purpose, first of all, to cause an increase in the circulation of the college's activities, telling in general the organization and each department has accomplished during the past year and in addition to the above, Kris also carry out a reform of the old. It tells them more about the college about its ideals and traditions, and assists the students of Puget Sound to understand it.

A JOB WELL DONE

To the editors and staff of The Trail, 1927-1928, The Trail extends its congratulations. The handbill is a very fine example of the printer's art, and reflects credit upon all those responsible for its publication.

The above, The Trail will from and on as the editor of the annual, gains much of the praise for its beauty. The art work is fine and a great deal of time and labor has been put into the book, considering the size.

Terry Smith, business manager of The Trail, has done much to make for the management of the book. He has in the first place in several years that the annual has formed a financial success. Not only by means of a path, he has various debts in the 1924 and 1926 books were paid.

The management of the college for the College of Puget Sound and is a good advertisement for the never-ending progress of our college.

A WORD OF THANKS

On behalf of the staff of The Trail and of the student body of the college, The Trail desires to thank the Printing Company for the beautiful job that has been done, the Puget Sound students for the cents made for the college work, and it has therefore had to borrow from the downtown dailies in the production illustrations of the covers. We appreciate the service of the Tacoma papers, and take this means of acknowledging their debt to their readers.

A HOT COMMENT

Good (at the Commons). I'll have soup and cattle.

Mrs. Gress's will help us but soup, but I sort of hate to take the fish away from the cat.
