LOGGERS TRAMPLE A GAME LEADING SQUAD UNDERFOOT

Final Score Is 61-0 in Nosebleed Victory
Varsity Totals 35 in Less Than Half!

Puget Sound Football Squad Rumbles in Navy Club

What started out to be a good football game in the Stadium last Saturday, took a sudden and unforeseen development into a bruising affair when South Puget Sound nipped the.loggers in the highly-tipped 12-10s.

Using Keane Block strategy, the loggers fumbled the kickoff string which passed and plunged its way to a touchdown within a few minutes after the starting whistle. But to their disappointment, the quarter the fighting defenders from the redshirt eleven gave them their share of backfield. The phone carrier held the seconds of Big Redskin Fever.

A. B. Koenig is listed as the second quarter's star and former star in the varsity eleven with one that will surely be a memory for the day. The first half was noted for the weak show of the redshirt eleven and the second half was a fighting struggle for two hours of thrilling football.

Van Buren McKenzie, pres. president of Theta Alpha Phi and last spring's stage manager, announced the new stage staff for this year, with the following personnel:

STAFF FOR YEAR'S COMING

VOL. 7, NO . 1

THANK YOU, SENATOR

More representing the 27th district of the state of Washington, Senator Davis has decided to withdraw his name from the list of candidates for the position of senator. The decision was made after a long and careful consideration of the situation.

Davis made his decision because he believed that as a United States Senator he would be able to give more attention to the needs of his constituents. The senator has decided to withdraw his name from the list of candidates for the position of senator.

Davis Deserves Commendation. To put his own ambitions aside and express his deep loyalty to the causes he fought for is a mark of a true engineer of the political party of the future. The senator's letter was timely and well written, and his decision is a noble one.

From Teacher's View

There is an absence of student enthusiasm in his letter. The letters will be open for the voting on Tuesday.

Should the college compass be compulsory? When confronted with this question, four students of the college expressed the following opinions:

"I think it has to be compulsory," said William Kellogg, freshman. "What would we do if we didn't have it?"

"I'm not sure," said Jerry Brown, sophomore. "It depends on how it's handled.

"I believe it should be voluntary," said John Smith, junior. "I don't think it's necessary for everyone.

"I think it's a good idea," said Jane Doe, senior. "It's a good way to learn more about the college."

The question of whether the college compass should be compulsory is one that has been debated for some time. The students expressed their opinions on the matter, with some in favor of making it compulsory and others in favor of making it voluntary. The final decision on this matter will likely be made by the college's administration, taking into account the opinions of the students and other stakeholders.

Student Personalities

On April 17, in the year 1910, the Puget Sound yearbook, the Tamanawas, was carried to the editor's desk, having been carried carefully from the press. The yearbook has always been a reflection of the college's students, and the personalities of the students have always been a part of its pages.

The Tamanawas was started in 1901, and has been published annually since then. It is a student publication of the college, and is written and produced by the students themselves.

The Tamanawas is the voice of the college, and it is a reflection of the college's students. It is a place where the students can express their thoughts and ideas, and it is a place where they can be heard.

The Tamanawas is a place where the students can be proud of their college, and they are. They are proud of their college, and they are proud of their yearbook.
