COLLEGIANS

Approximately 30 students of the University of California at Los Angeles have been asked to attend one of the basketball games in the coming season to be used as witnesses in the sexual harassment lawsuit brought against the school by a former student. The suit, filed by a female former student who was alleged to have been sexually harassed by a male student, alleges that the university failed to take appropriate action after being notified of the alleged harassment.

The university has denied the allegations and is fighting the lawsuit in court. The case has attracted national attention and is expected to set a precedent for how universities handle Sexual Misconduct cases.

WILDCAT Squad Meets Maroon

Loggers Favorites in Cup Final of Game of Seasons Over All

As a post-Thanksgiving treat, the College of Puget Sound football team will meet the University of Washington in Seattle.

The game is set for 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, November 25, at Husky Stadium. The winner of the game will advance to the Pacific Coast Conference championship game, which is scheduled for December 2.

The game will feature two of the top teams in the conference, as both teams are currently undefeated. The Wildcats have won their first 10 games, while the Huskies have won their first 9.

Tickets for the game are available at the stadium gate or online through the College of Puget Sound athletics department.

STADIUM PROBLEM IS DISCUSSED

With the cost of maintenance and repairs continuing to rise, the University of Washington is considering the possibility of building a new football stadium.

The current stadium, built in 1967, has been in poor condition for some time. The University has been unable to raise the necessary funds to make significant repairs, and the stadium is no longer able to host professional games.

The University is currently exploring the possibility of building a new stadium, which would likely cost upwards of $300 million. The University has not made a final decision on whether to proceed with the project, and further discussions will be held in the coming weeks.

Sports Budget Starts to Get Out of Hand

The University of Washington is facing a budget crisis as its sports programs continue to run up costs.

The athletics department is currently operating at a deficit, with revenues not keeping pace with expenses. The University is looking at ways to cut costs and increase revenues in order to return to profitability.

The University is also considering the possibility of cutting some sports programs in order to reduce costs. The football and basketball programs are likely to be affected, as they are the most expensive programs to operate.

The University is expected to make a decision on its budget in the coming weeks. The athletics department is likely to face significant changes in the near future.
