The publication's committee of the conference. The feeling here is that games are obsolete and classes will meet five times a week. Evans, manager.

In order to acquire the prize with three contests—one A. C. P. S. C. P., the condition is to give plaques as questions at a missing question. The only way to get the prize is to answer the seven questions correctly. This is really quite a game, but some people can't answer the questions correctly. The manager is quite pleased with the prize because it is the only one in the history of the conference.

HATS

We will start off today's broadcast by giving you another example of the kind of music that can be enjoyed in any of the fine restaurants around the country. The song that we will sing today features the well-known and much-loved tune, "How Much is That Doggie in the Window?"

As the last performance of the show, the singers will be joined by a talented young pianist, who will accompany them on the piano.

The song, "How Much is That Doggie in the Window?" has been a favorite of many people for many years, and it continues to be enjoyed today. The melody is simple and catchy, and the lyrics are easy to follow along with.

The performance will be broadcast live from the BYPATH studios, and it will be available for everyone to listen to at their convenience. So tune in and enjoy the music!

ABOUT NOW

There are a certain group of happenings or events every year at which one or more editorials are always directed. One such group is college in our own particular situation. It is the custom to urge the voters to vote for the man and not the issue, or the issue and not the man. This custom is mostly observed in other situations as well as in ours. We believe in the spirit of a good college and college men.

Despite all this sound journalistic advice, the desire to vote for a presidential ticket introduces itself again. Ourselves, of course, are in favor of the custom of supporting the men who are best calculated to lead us. And all we can be "devised" with a certain amount of urgency and piquancy.

But all foolishness aside, the vegetable, manufactured colors, and "Taft" are merely pebbles in the Puget Sound this year—and let’s try to think and act sensibly.

SOFT WINDS

We get a thrill now when we look back on the good old days of the first frost and the first snows of the year. We shall miss them in the winter. We have tableaux of them, and these will be in the mind’s eye just as they are when there is no more of the season. But we can never have the same thrill of their coming, nor will we feel that same joy of their going as we did.

We have many a good picture of the first snow of the season, and it is a thrill to see the snow falling, and the wind blowing it across the landscape. We have many a good picture of the first frost of the season, and it is a thrill to see the frost forming on the trees and plants.

We have no such thrill as the sight of the first frost of the season, and we cannot feel that same joy of its going as we did. We have no such thrill as the first snow of the season, and we cannot feel that same thrill of its coming, nor will we feel that same joy of its going as we did.

We have many a good picture of the first snow of the season, and it is a thrill to see the snow falling, and the wind blowing it across the landscape. We have many a good picture of the first frost of the season, and it is a thrill to see the frost forming on the trees and plants.
