COLLEGIANS from the Okanogan, Walla Walla, Whitman, Walla Walla Junior College, and the University of Idaho are planning a joint eighteen-hour symposium of the arts in the coming year. The number of colleges participating will be determined by the number of students interested in the project.

A portion of the symposium will be devoted to the history of the arts, with a special emphasis on the development of art in the United States. This will include lectures, discussions, and a film presentation.

The symposium will also include a series of concerts, with performances by orchestras and choirs from the participating colleges. These will feature a range of music from different time periods and styles.

The symposium will conclude with a series of exhibitions of art works created by students from the participating colleges. These will be displayed in a specially designed exhibition hall.

The symposium will be held over the course of a week, with events running from morning to evening. The schedule will be posted on the college websites and in local newspapers in advance.

The symposium is open to the public, and admission will be free. All events will be held on the campus of the hosting college, with transportation provided between the campuses.

Registration for the symposium will open in the fall, and a limited number of scholarships will be available to students who are interested in participating but cannot afford the costs.

The symposium is supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and additional funding is being sought from local businesses and organizations.

For more information, please visit the symposium website or contact the symposium coordinator at the host college.

Rhodes Scholarship

The Rhodes Scholarship is a prestigious award that provides full funding for students to attend Oxford University in the United Kingdom. The scholarship is open to students from the United States, Canada, and Australia, and is awarded based on academic merit and leadership potential.

To be eligible for the Rhodes Scholarship, students must be citizens of the United States, Canada, or Australia, and must be in their final year of undergraduate study. They must also have a strong academic record and demonstrate leadership potential through involvement in extracurricular activities.

The application process involves writing a number of essays, submitting letters of recommendation, and participating in a selection interview. The deadline for applications is typically in January.

The Rhodes Scholarship is a significant opportunity for students to expand their education and cultural horizons, and to gain a deeper understanding of the United Kingdom and its history.

For more information on the Rhodes Scholarship, please visit the Rhodes Scholarship website or contact the Rhodes Scholarship office at Oxford University.
