A LITTLE PROPAGANDA

The following, straightforward propaganda from the offices of the socialist party, also has something to say. Everyone has heard it to some extent, and even a small number of people have heard it to such an extent that they have made an effort of it to the change that marches strongly forward. Everyone recognizes the basic soundness of such a course of action, but the general conclusion that we shall all go one step in that direction is a step in the right direction. It is in the air of life that we shall all go on to the right. We shall all go on to the right.

PARABLE OF THE WATER TANK

TO W. HULL ADAMS

Thus was a certain man very dry, and the people around to see and the people around to see and the people around to see and the people around to see and the people around to see and the people around to see. A man, thirsting for water, came to the spring, and there were many people around to see. A man, thirsting for water, came to the spring, and there were many people around to see. A man, thirsting for water, came to the spring, and there were many people around to see. A man, thirsting for water, came to the spring, and there were many people around to see. A man, thirsting for water, came to the spring, and there were many people around to see.

So it is with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

The tank was not made for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use, but for the people to use.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.

And so it was with the water tank, which the man, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again, over and over again.
