Gives Jerome's Serious Play
"Passing of Third Floor Back" Is Title of Second Production

With the presentation of the "Passing of the Third Floor Back," Friday evening in Jones Hall, comes a drama of ordinary personalities in a situation in which hatred and greed are opposed to humor and kindness. With Miss Martha Pease Jones as director this serious play by Jerome K. Jerome promises to be a worthwhile production.

Scene I Boarding House
The scene is laid in a boarding house. Gathered in its adjoining chambers are people who by their character are defined as a coward, a bully, a sow, a horse, a rogue, a man, and a few, a skunk, a slob, a cheat. A passer-by also lurks here, and by becoming a friend, a beam of light into these lives. Illuminating their littleness and grossness. At the close of the drama, the scene is the same, but the boarding house is now an old horizontal dwelling of two lovers, a man and wife, a Jew, an entertaining party, a maiden lady, a drunk, an office boy, the lady of the house and a friend.

Members of the cast include Ellen Jorgensen, Peggy Scudder, Kathrynn St. Clair, Evelyn Mellinger, Gladys Nef, Elise Tuuri, Warren Mackley, Wragby and Philip Carlson, Franklin Larson, Ben Robertson and James Neff.

La Mesa Redonda Announces Pledges

La Mesa Redonda announces the pledging of two new members: Per- tinger Anderson, sophomore and Blan- ley Wells, freshman.

Carl McConnell, president of Lambda Sigma Chi sorority, announced the pledge ceremonies to Betha Noyes as mar- shall. Harriet Rosemeier, retiring president of the club, pinned the colors on the pledges. A speech of welcome to the new members was made by James Gervais, who re- presented the alumni of the club.

The results of the election of offi- cers are as follows: Carl McConnell, president; Harriet Rosemeier, secre- tary; Thelma Minniss, treasurer.

Those newly elected will go into office immediately and serve until November 28.

According to Mrs. Charles A. Rob- ertson, Elmora home member, troops, have been the barometer of success of the dance. Mrs. Drushel, dean of women at the College of Puget Sound, was in- troduced by Miss Jane Black. She based her answer to the question of that most desired but indefinable quality on Margery Wilson’s little book “Charm.” Miss Wilson, who has kept woman’s secrets, prefaced her talk with a quotation from Sir James Barrie, “Charm—if you have it, you don’t need anything else—and if you haven’t it, it doesn’t mean much what else you have.”

Mrs. Drushel declared that apart from charm, the most important quality is “beauty.”

New Arbitrator

Although the magic of charm is fast becoming a criterion of a new renaissance, instead of fortis, wealth, or even looks, it has been pointed out that it is a quality capable of producing the most satisfactory effect. It is based, coming from within, outward, not “put on from the external shell.”

Every woman has a secret technique which makes one interesting on some point.

Mrs. Drushel quoted “Our influence anywhere is in ex- tension to our charm.”

Necessary qualities for bringing out charm in an individual include: intelligence, taste, and general appearance; kindness, self-confidence, beauty, social and general appearance and a certain amount of humor. They must be developed daily in every relationship, even to the most casual, which stresses motive rather than result.

Concluding, Mrs. Drushel quoted, “If your influence anywhere is in ex- tension to your charm.”

Mrs. Kate Brown Will Speak on “Charm In Beauty”

Tomorrow

“Charm—what is it?” This quest- ion inspired Mrs. Lyle F. Drushell’s talk at the opening meeting, Tues- day, of a four-week series of “Charm in Beauty” lectures, as outlined by Miss Eleanor Hoyt, pro- fessor, chairman, will be “Charm in education” to be given tomorrow, when Miss Kate Brown will demonstrate hints for good grooming; “Charm in Worship,” on November 28, a Thanksgiving service in the Little Chapel, and “Charm in Manner” on December 5, led by Miss Gretchen Thoma, senior, the Lambda Sigma Chi room, which women filled to em- phasis at Tuesday’s meeting, will be the place of the other sessions.

Miss Kate Brown, arts teacher and advisor, began her list of points with a joke. “If you have charm you have it. And if you don’t you have it, and if you have it you have it anywhere else—and if you haven’t it, it doesn’t mean much what else you have.”

First Hoop Game
Scheduled For Tuesday Night

Loggers Clash With Strong Superior Dairy Outfit
In CPS Gym

With the football season over and the first basketball game scheduled for tonight, a new chapter in the college gym the Logger hoop squad is getting down to serious work under the direction of coach Dan Sanders and assistant coach Lou Grant.

Strengthened by the turnout of Ber Carlson, stellar forward, Jimmy Russel, diminutive and elusive guard and forward, Vaughn Steffel, former Bremerton prep star, Beeds Lindquist, tricky scour, and a clutch of other stars well known in the northwestern basketball circles.

This is the Logger squad for tomorrow night will be composed of many of those who have been doing regular duty during the past few weeks rather than some of the returning veterans who complied last year's captain, the Maroon and White goal line stock, Bryan McAlpine, who is rugged, strong, although the whole team seems to have recovered and once again we see him praying about on the gridiron.

While in high school he was exalted to the varsity and was the only member of the varsity team to be named all-city that year. His final year he turned out for track and made his letter in the weight events. On entering college he continued his performance and earned an award here last spring.

Havel is on the student council and boys' council in high school and was secretary of the 10-Y. He is five foot ten inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Logger-Badger Contest
Ends Glorious Season

"Oskar" McConnell showing up strong, although the whole lightweight section played a fine brand of ball and looked like the championship outfit that they are.

Loren Douglas, the bright light for the Loggers who has made Lumberjack plays, looked like the best lightweight of the day.

Badger Passing Woes
Throughout the contest the Badger wows were through due to their pass blocking attack which worked well in mid field but the Logger defense tightened in the tough spots and kept the Maroon and White goal line from being crossed.

This marked the final intercollegiate game for six Logger veterans; Jack Sprenger, all conference guard; Bob Nance, the "Horsehead"; Robert Salmon who ends his fourth season at tackle by scoring a touchdown; Budette Sterling, three-year veterans and outstanding signal caller; Park O'Neil, captain of the day.
