LIFE...

The founders of the United States had big plans in mind when they set out to create the Constitution. Their notions of leadership, of the citizenry and the rights of the individual were so bold, the world thought they were mad.

LIBERTY...

Now, in 2004, LMDA revisits the spirit of the Founding Fathers and sets out to investigate ideas that just may be as sweeping and revolutionary as they were in 1790.

Over the course of four remarkable days, in sites historic, cultural and governmental, LMDA members and their friends will ponder the questions of citizenship.

HAPPINESS!

How can an artist actively participate in society? What are the rights, roles and responsibilities of such participation? What does it mean to be “independent”? And what are the practical ways of being a “good citizen” – in all facets of one’s life and art?

The framers of the US Constitution had a lasting impact on the world at large. Join us from June 24-27th in the City of Brotherly Love as we investigate the legacy of Philadelphia – life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.
