The Loggers won their game against Claremont 34-28 after three overtimes, much to the delight of their fans.

Holden Sapp

Darrell Stewart slipped past his opponent with the ball while running towards the end zone.

Darren Loe

During their game against Claremont, Casey Larson dodged a defender and passed the ball to a teammate.
Brian Walker was prepared to block his opponent during this year’s Homecoming game.

A quick team huddle during an action-packed game against Claremont.

A Logger player blocks the opposing players from Claremont so his teammate can run through with the ball towards the end zone.

Football

This year’s Logger football team ended their season with a landslide win against Lewis & Clark. It was a great ending to their season and send off for their 18 seniors playing their last game as a University of Puget Sound Loggers.

A quick team huddle during an action-packed game against Claremont.
Men's Soccer

The University of Puget Sound Men's Soccer Team finished off the 2008 season with a record of 10-7-2 overall and 8-4-2 in the Northwest Conference. The Loggers held their composure in 2008, leading the NWC in the least fouls committed and least cards shown. The team also had the most support of any team in the NWC averaging 292 fans per game. Although the team is looking forward to some great seasons in the future, seniors Taylor Hyde and Kyle Johnson will be greatly missed.

Senior Taylor Hyde winding up to pass the ball in a game against Pacific Lutheran University. Hyde scored eight goals for the Loggers during the 2008 season.

Team huddle during the 2-0 against Willamette, the final game of the season.
Junior midfielder Daniel Lee heads the ball during a game against Pacific Lutheran University.

Senior forward Kyle Johnson shoots the ball during a 2-1 win against Pacific University. Johnson scored 5 goals during the 2008 season.

Forward Alex Lehecka following through during the 2-1 win against Pacific.
The Women's Soccer Team had a record season this fall finishing out their conference season with 13 shutouts and setting Northwest Conference history with a 16-0-0 record. They made it into the second round of the NCAA Division III Championships and ended their season as the seven-time defending Northwest Conference Champions.
Freshman Rochel Burke on keeping the ball away from her opponent while trying to score a goal against Concordia.

Freshman Maya Heck focuses on receiving the ball from a teammate during their winning game against Concordia.

Senior Janece Levien stays one step ahead of her opponent during their game against Pacific.
Lauren Mouat runs in the Charles Bowles Invitational at Willamette University on October 4, 2008.

Freshmen Casey Wall, Daniel Teshima, Robert Snowden, and Zach Small represent Puget Sound during the Lewis and Clark Open at the Mclver State Park in Estacada, OR.

Members of the men's cross country team at the start of a race for the Pioneer Open, hosted by Lewis and Clark in Portland, OR.
The cross country team has worked hard this season to get where they are, averaging 40-70 miles a week in practice. This close-knit team has bonded together on and off the road, from races all across the Pacific Northwest to Tuesday Pie Nights. Junior Francis Reynolds finished the season when he took 21st in the NCAA Division III Cross Country Championship in Indiana, becoming the Logger's first All-American since 2004. For the women, Junior Emma Kelsey broke records and raised the bar, leading the Loggers to victory on more than one occasion.
Volleyball

The women's volleyball team was off to a great start this season. Early on, they were able to maintain their AVCA ranked status, one of the few NWC schools to do so. Towards the end, they placed sixth in the NCAA regional rankings and qualified the NCAA Division III Championship Tournament for the second straight season and third time in four years.

Jamee Fred, Erika Greene, and Emma Bryant are prepared to keep the ball on the other side of the net at the game against Lewis and Clark.
The Logger women work together to keep the ball up in the air.

Sophomore Natalie Mono drives the ball to the other side of the net against the blocks made by the other team.

Sophomore Natalie Mono drives the ball to the other side of the net against the blocks made by the other team.

Juniors Brynn Blickenstaff goes up close to the net to spike the ball into the opponent’s side in the game against PLU.

The women’s team celebrates after an amazing shot made by fellow teammates.

Kalli Kamphaus gets ready to carry out the pass supplied by Jamee Fried in the game against Witworth.
A swimmer glides through the water in breaststroke at the Wallace Pool in a meet against Whitworth.

Swimming

This year's Swim Team battled hard throughout the year against other Northwest Conference schools in order to make it to the NWC and NCAA Championships. The Loggers have consistently been at the top for the Northwest Conference on both the men's and women's sides. The women's team placed first in the NWC Conference and the men's team came in second this year.

A fellow teammate watches as a swimmer dives into the water for a relay race.

One of the swimmers pushes to the finish in one of many races at the January 31st meet.
The calm of the water is on the brink of being disturbed by the power of the men's swim teams in the meet against the Whitworth Pirates.

A swimmer cuts through the water in a powerful rendition of the breaststroke.

Freshman Sierra Phillips shows off her backstroke in a meet against Whitworth.

Edric Egberuare aimed for the hoop despite strong opposition in the game against Santa Cruz.

In the game against George Fox, Jason Foster was determined to score points for his team.

Austin Boyce reached up for the hoop with Jason Foster close by in the exciting game against PLU.
Nadav Heyman went for the hoop with Kaleb Shelton there for backup in the game against Macalester.

Men's Basketball

The Men's Basketball Team had a strong season with an overwhelming 16-0 winning record in Northwest Conference games. They were the first team, in over twenty years, to have such a strong winning streak in the Northwest Conference. The perseverance that the players kept allowed them to show their skills and move up to be the 7th ranked team in NCAA Division III. After the regular season, the Loggers beat the Whitworth Pirates with a score of 84-72 securing their advancement into the Sweet 16.

Antwan Williams soared into the air to get past his opponent in the game against Santa Cruz.
UPS junior Claire Ely sped past her opponent while looking for the basket.

Freshman Jocelyn Riordan looks for the open shot after taking on two PLU opponents.

St. Thomas was no match for Loggers' freshman Courtney Blume.
No one could stop number 11 Claire Ely as she made her way down the court.

The 2008-2009 Women's Basketball Team: Jocelyn Riordan, Caitlyn Faidley, Brittney Basilio, Claire Ely, Chelsi Shaw, Courtney Blume, Natasha Ludwig, Karen Chase, Sharran Lowe, Andrea Edwards, and Ayanna Drakos are coached by Suzy Barcomb, Joleen LaMay, Lindsay DeVries, and Shelby Ramirez.

Women's Basketball

The 2009 season for Women's basketball was full of action and excitement. The Loggers claimed sole possession of second place in the Northwest Conference with a record of 11-5 in conference games and 17-8 overall. The Loggers concluded their regular season against Willamette with a score of 70-50.
Crew

The 2008-2009 season looked optimistic for the Men’s and Women’s Crew Teams. Last year, the Puget Sound Men’s Crew program came away with a conference title while the women’s team took second at the Northwest Collegiate Rowing Conference Championships. Both teams look forward to success in future regattas. The season started off with the Daffodil Cup at American Lake on March 20, 2009.
Novice Women are pictured carrying their boat at the Charlie Brown Regatta, fall 2008.
Elizabeth Butt reaches for the ball as Katie Schlesinger and Sofia Lama advance to help her.

Teammates cheer as Lindsay Pearce takes possession of the ball.

Player Katherine Havlik strives to block the ball from the opposing team.
The Women's Lacrosse team started the season with a lot of energy. This year the team focused on creating a more well-rounded team, aiming to improve their defense since they had a strong offense from last year. The combined talent of the players led to a very promising outlook for the season.

An intense struggle for the ball occurs with player Lindsay Pearce in the front.

Player Katie Schlesinger attempts to pass the ball with an opponent close behind.

Teammates Kyra Friedell and Lindsay Pearce struggle to take possession of the ball.
The Logger's Baseball Team had a good season. Even though the 35 man roster had no seniors, they were still able to maintain a strong record and show remarkable improvements as the season progressed. The outlook is good for these young players as they look ahead to future seasons.

Sophomore Spencer Crace pitches the ball during a home game.

Freshmen Will Mentor focuses on the pitch to try and get the Loggers some runs.
The team celebrates after two consecutive home runs during a game against Whitworth.

Sophomore David Thirlby stops a Whitworth player from reaching first base.
Freshman Megan Janes plays catcher in a game in March.

Senior Nikki LaFemina practices in Warner Gym for an upcoming game.

A member of the softball team gets ready to hit a home run.
The softball team stands ready in anticipation for the ball to come their way.

Members of the team watch as their fellow players are up to bat.

Softball

This year's Women's Softball Team has spent much of their time away from school, with only two games so far played on the Logger Softball field. Being far from home hasn't stopped these women from winning many of their games in tournaments across the western states. At the Sunwest Tournament held in Anaheim, California over spring break, the Loggers won three different games and soaked up the sun as well. Overall, the team has done well and individuals have grown into better players during the season.
Both the Men's and Women's Teams worked hard to show their strengths against opponents. The beginning of the season proved challenging as they faced other teams in the Northwest Conference.

The Women's Team won against PLU with a score of 5-4, winning all three of the doubles matches.

The Men's team had a rough start, but was able to win against both George Fox and Lewis & Clark. Junior Scooter Sabel successfully placed fifth in singles with a 3-2 winning record.

Madison Holtz prepares to hit a strong serve.

Ashley Dombrow gets ready to hit the ball back to the opponent's side.

Nick Kelley keeps his eye on the ball and prepares to strike back.
Samantha Taylor is determined to not let the ball touch the ground.

Zac Peeler races to hit the ball as teammate Nick Kelley prepares to back up.

The Men's 2008-2009 Team: Stefan Berglund, Peter Celtier, John Fardell, Sam Finkleman, Alex Harrison, Jamie Hosmer, Nick Kelley, Carl Larson, Phil Munsterman, George Murphy, Ollie Napier, Zac Peeler, Scooter Rahel, Andrew Timmons, Andrew Wilson, and Coach Chet Dawson.
The Men’s and Women’s Golf Teams started the season playing strong. The teams landed fourth place in the NWC Fall Tournament. Sophomore Natalie Nakamine scored a 77, the second best score in Logger history, and helped the Logger women win the Logger Invitational. Junior Jordan Hodge and Sophomore Greg Kirkpatrick tied for sixth place in the Invitational and brought the team to third place.
Freshman Andy Bingle locks ahead as he prepares to take a swing.

The Logger women wait patiently on the green while one of their teammates putts.

Junior Maresa Jenson puts some strength into her swing with the hope of getting good distance down the range.
Senior Cam Nakano leads the pack in the 800 meters.

Freshman Robert Snowden paces himself during a race at the Joe Peyton Invitational.

The track is named after Don Shotwell, a former Logger football player and asphalt contractor. Shotwell was a huge contributor to the athletics program at Puget Sound.
Pole vaulting is one of the many field events that athletes can partake in.

The Track and Field program draws in student-athletes from various sports who all share a desire to improve their individual abilities. While track and field is essentially an individual sport, these Puget Sound athletes work together on achieving their goals. The first home track meet was the Joe Peyton Invitational held on March 7, 2009. On both the women's and men’s sides, the season looks optimistic with multiple NWC qualifiers.