Where you live, Work and Play

Residential programs has made a revolutionary change for residence halls. Unlike past years, the program has authorized the upperclassmen and women to live in the freshmen residential areas. This has allowed more interactions between the upperclassmen and freshmen at the residence halls.

Dave Nakamura, a senior from Seattle, WA, said, "I have always wanted to live in Seward Hall since my sophomore year. Now my dream has come true. The life at the Seward in my senior year couldn't be better with more friendship with the freshmen."

In addition, the residential program created an outdoor program at a residence hall called, "Adventure Hall." The Adventure Hall organizes many outdoor activities such as skiing trip, mountain climbing and even rock climbing.

"The outdoor program at the Adventure Hall has ventured us to a new horizon," said a junior, Brent Thoemke. "The program has helped a lot of us to get to know each other through healthy outdoor stuff."

There is no doubt that the residence hall is the first place where most freshmen students make their lifelong friendships with others. It is inevitable that the residence hall is also the center to start the most social activities on campus.

With a change by the residential program, the residence halls have become the places where many students gather and enjoy their lives, whether they be freshmen or upperclassmen.
What you lookin’ at? A resident of Harrington Hall might recognize this typical college living space.

Gimme a break...the library and SUB are popular gathering places for study groups.

It's been a hard day's night!

Have you ever felt the need to just get away from school and homework? For many of us who have cars or family nearby, this is a plausible idea. But for those of us who are destined to "footing it," finding a local, inexpensive weekend activity can cause a major headache. But hey, what about the weekly campus film? For only a dollar, students can relax and enjoy a current film every Friday through Sunday, at one of two showtimes. Large circles of friends come to see such films as "Pulp Fiction" and "Apollo 13." Be careful though, the smell of buttery popcorn may just draw you back again.

Points of light

Everyone heads outside with the first signs of spring. Point Defiance Park is a favorite hang-out for college students when the weather is nice. "It's fun to climb trees near trails and watch people walk under you. Occasionally, of course, we jump down and scare the living daylights out of a few unsuspecting strangers," says Freshman Danielle Snider.

Students can be found studying or just relaxing at local parks. Fishing, riding the ferry or going to the Zoo can be a fun weekend excursion away from campus.

E-mail. It's one of those things you don't even think about at home but is very important at college. Going to the computer lab is a daily ritual for many students. Collecting information from news groups and talking to friends is cheaper and faster than regular mail. Technology has come a long way. Next stop: virtual reality lab.

Did I get a message? Students gather between classes in the computer lab to check e-mail, commune through the Web and practice good "netiquette."

Cafe Society. Filled with a wonderful aroma and a diverse group of people, Cafe WA has a relaxing atmosphere for students to study and drink coffee.

Caffeine High

How about a cup of joe? One of the most remarkable things about the Northwest is the love for coffee. Whether it's a double-tall mocha, a skinny-no-foam latte or a cup of decaf that you prefer, it seems almost everyone has a taste for coffee.

Local coffehouses are a great place to hear live acoustic music, poetry readings or to try a new flavor in your latte. Most offer discounts to students and are a great meeting place for study breaks or Sunday afternoon talks.

Some of the most popular places to go for a quick caffeine rush are: Berlotino's, Shakabra Java, Starbuck's and Cafe WA.
Class Struggle

Picture it: mid-terms are going reasonably well and then...it's time for registration.

Every student can share a registration horror story: classes that were full or cancelled in front of their very eyes. Freshmen and sophomores often get the fuzzy end of the lollipop on registering for upper-division and generally fun classes (i.e. ceramics and ballroom dance.)

After scratching out classes that were not meant to be and waiting for a good half-hour, it's finally time when they enter your new and improved schedule into the computer.

With a smile, Jill Czarnecky checks students' names off a list as they begin the registration process. She also answers any last minute questions.
When facing the future is at the top of the priority list, a sense of humor comes in handy.

Dear Kelley,

The first day at UPS you turned to me and said "Mom, I don't think I can do this!" Well, Sweetie, you did it! In these past four years it's been wonderful to see you grow into the beautiful person that you are. Your kind spirit and loving heart will touch many lives in your new role as an occupational therapist.

You have made us so very proud! Live life to the fullest and may God bless you and guide you each step of the way!

All our love,
Mom, Dad and Amy

Woof, woof, woof, woof, Derik!

---

Dear Janice,

Find confidence within your heart and let it be your guide. Strive ever harder towards your dreams and they won't be denied. Apply your knowledge and skill to build a stronger America and achieve the quality of life you deserve. --Love, Dad, Mom, Mike & Calvin
Jameson G. Wittkopp

You worked hard.
You played hard.
You did it all.
You did it very well.
I'm very proud.

--Dad

Keep your face to the sunshine as you ride out into the world! You are still our sunshine girl and always will be no matter where your journeys take you.

All our love and support go with you
--Mom and Dad

BRAVO CHRIS! Congratulations on your graduation.
Love, Mom, Dad, Jason, Jeff and NACHO
Jenn Calame, Art Major

Art is essentially the affirmation, the blessing, and the deification of existence. If you ask me, what I came to do in this world, I, an artist, will answer; I am here to live out loud. Jenna, Let today embrace the past with remembrance and the future longing. I love you with every fiber in my soul. --Mother
Daniel,

Congratulations & best wishes for the future to Anne and the entire class of '96!

From
Mom & Dad, Kate, Alison, Jennifer and Kyle

To Our Precious Mellie, Honey, you have made your family
and relatives so proud. Soon you will be setting out on a
new adventure,
where there’s so much out there for you to explore and discover. Good luck
in all your endeavors, sweetheart.

Love you, Mom, Dad & Natty

graduation...the names will be forgotten but some of the faces will remain.
Where are you going, where have you been?

Okay, you've got that coveted U.P.S. degree. What will you do with the knowledge you've received? Will you save the world? Or, more realistically, make it a better place?

Most are off to graduate school to increase their knowledge. Some will dive into careers to test their knowledge. A few will choose to give away their knowledge--teach in inner city schools, peace corps and ministry.

A small handful might become professional nomads--world travelers, teachers for international schools--with a backpack for a home and a chronic case of wanderlust.

The point is this: the "real world" isn't an isolated, individual vision. It is a collection of ideas, experiences, approaches to life. Maybe you'll add your own perspective to the vision.

To paraphrase Shel Silverstein: you may not know where you're going but at least you know where you've been.
the 1996 tamanawas volume 76, was printed by josten's publishing company in visalia, california. the press run was 1,950 copies, at size 9x12 inches, each containing 208 pages. pages are printed offset on 80lb gloss paper using black ink with multiples of second colors tempo 349 forest green, 292 light blue, and 344 celery green. all headlines, text and captions are set in helvetica. individual portraits were taken by jack phelps of columbia photographic service, inc. of clackamas, oregon. the cover is lithography with gloss lamination. all design and layout for the book was done by tamanawas staff with some elements taken from yeartech templates.
