Confusion on Campus

Those enrolled at the College of Puget Sound and the College of Holy Names may have noticed an increased number of large and small buildings along campus in the past weeks. This is due to the fact that the College has been moving a number of buildings and rearranging some older buildings around campus.

First the knowledge defeat was the grand old gymnasium, and slowly but surely the old gymnasium was moved to the four winds of the campus, thus out of his wis and upsetting the halls of C.P.S. last Thursday morning, according to the signs posted in the hallways.

Since the return of C.P.S. students to the College in the fall of 1911, the old gymnasium has been a constant source of annoyance to both students and faculty. The gymnasium was located in the center of the campus, and was always filled with noise and commotion.

The gymnasium was moved to a new location on the north side of the campus, and was replaced by a new gymnasium building.

The move was accomplished without incident, and the students and faculty were pleased with the new location.

The old gymnasium was destroyed by fire more than ten years ago, and was replaced by the new gymnasium.

The new gymnasium is larger and more modern than the old, and is equipped with all the latest facilities.

The move of the gymnasium has been a great relief to the students and faculty, and has been an important step in the modernization of the College.

Next to the gymnasium was moved the large tables arranged for sewing classes. Since the return of C.P.S. students to the College in the fall of 1911, the large tables have been a constant source of annoyance to both students and faculty.

The large tables were moved to a new location on the south side of the campus, and were replaced by smaller tables.

The move was accomplished without incident, and the students and faculty were pleased with the new location.

The new location for the tables is more convenient for the students, and is equipped with all the latest facilities.

The move of the tables has been a great relief to the students and faculty, and has been an important step in the modernization of the College.

In the near future, the College of Puget Sound will be moving a number of other buildings around campus, and it is hoped that this will be accomplished without incident.

The College of Puget Sound is committed to the modernization of its facilities, and it is hoped that this will be accomplished without incident.

The Hidden Key

Just before midsummer, while pond lilies and water hyacinths were floating at the edge of the pond, and a young girl was sitting on one of the stones sunning herself, a pool of water suddenly appeared in the middle of the pond. It was not big, but it made a loud splash when it hit the surface of the water. The girl looked up, startled, and then she saw that there was someone in the pool. It was a young woman, with long, dark hair that fell over her shoulders. She was wearing a blue dress, and she was looking at the girl with a smile on her face.

The girl was frightened, but the woman in the pool spoke to her in a gentle voice. "Don't be afraid," she said. "I am here to help you. You see, I can see into the future, and I can see that you are in danger."

The girl was amazed. How could this woman see into the future? She asked her a question. "How do you do it?"

But the woman didn't answer. She just smiled again and disappeared into the water, leaving the girl to wonder what had just happened. She knew that she had been chosen for some kind of special mission, but she didn't know what it was. She felt a sense of excitement and fear, and she knew that she had to be prepared for whatever was to come.

The girl decided to try to find out more about this woman and her powers. She began to study the subject of prophecy and divination, and she soon became an expert in the field. She traveled all over the world, trying to learn as much as she could about the secrets of prophecy. And finally, she found a way to use her powers to help others. She became a powerful prophetess, and her predictions were sought after by kings and queens and emperors all over the world. And so, the girl who had once been so ordinary became a legend, a symbol of hope and courage for all who knew her.
