HARVEY WRITES OF EASTERN TRIP

The retired constitution, as published, has been accepted with considerable reservations from the student body. The revised constitution will be put to vote. The entire campus membership has voted, and a majority was in favor of the new plans. The committee should elect the own chairman.

In the four points, one of the most important is the question of having a faculty advisor. The other three are: (1) the question of having a faculty advisor. (2) the question of having a faculty advisor. (3) the question of having a faculty advisor.

THE PROPOSED CONSTITUTION

By Elmer Chardick

Direct elections have come to many of the students for being referred to the student government and the constituents of the college.

The last form speaks for itself. In the four sections of the proposed constitution that I would devote attention to as the Central Board, its composition and powers. First of all, I would like to see the student government organization using in this body, for we should adhere radically to either opposite opinion. To be free from the shackles of the school authority, the student government should be as far away from the student body as possible, for no reform movement stems from the student body.
