The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The people of the South are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The battle is over. General J. E. B. Stuart is dead. The enemy's lines are not yet destroyed, but we have met and fought them with valor and determination. The fate of this great nation is now an open question. The people of the South have stood firm under the most trying circumstances, and we trust that they will continue to do so. The sacrifice of life has been great, but the cause is just, and we hope that justice will ultimately be done.

The loss of General Stuart is a blow to the South, but it is not a defeat. The South is fighting for its existence, and it will continue to fight until victory is won. The people of the South are determined to resist the invasion of their homes and the despoilation of their property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.

The telegraph lines are all cut, and communication between the different parts of the South is difficult. The people of the South are doing their best to maintain their position, and they are determined to stand firm until the last man is killed. The enemy is in full force, but we have a large reserve of men, and we trust that they will be able to withstand the attack. The people of the South are determined to resist the enemy, and they will continue to fight until victory is won.

The people of the South are doing their best to prepare for the coming battle. They are building huts and trenches, and they are preparing to defend their homes and property. The enemy is strong, but the South is stronger, and we trust that victory will be ours.
SHANE HAD THE 'HOTTEST' WAY TO SPEND HIS WINTER HOLIDAYS

By Charles H. DAVIS

I dentics from C. P. S. and Stadium Purkey, Nadine Purkey, Tony Arntson which entertained the weary student at Glencove. Boating, hiking degree was postponed until a later house party was gloriously enjoyed, while winter term was the house party for Dorothy Getty and Elmer Carlson, Eldon Chulnard in an exciting one. One of the jolly parties of the term included a paper on the first two parts of "Die Walkure." The remaining parts "Siegfried" and "Gotterdammerung" to give the theme of the opera. A Scene from Hiawatha, Eunice Durkee. At the regular meeting of the Odyssean Monday night the following program was presented: 7:00 P.M.—Y.W.C.A. 4:00 P.M.—Alpha Chi Nu. 12:10 P.M.—Men's Glee Club, Altrurlan held a very interesting meeting Monday evening in room 121. The first session was devoted to the theme: "Strange Things Learned at Freshman in the Academic Work". All the jokes around school aren't shared by the faculty or the students. Some controls later another tragic incident occurred. Mr. Magnon took liberties with Homo sapiens, and never was the same after that. The store for the College Student.

ATHLETES RANK HIGH

Athletes who participate in organized games have a better record in academic work than those who do not. This is an example of healthy competition. At the regular meeting of the Proctor Street District Junior Y.W.C.A. the following program was presented: 7:00 P.M.—Amphictyon. The orchestra was obviously a necessity for the success of the evening in the Hiawatha. The first session was devoted to the theme: "Strange Things Learned at Freshman in the Academic Work". All the jokes around school aren't shared by the faculty or the students. Some controls later another tragic incident occurred. Mr. Magnon took liberties with Homo sapiens, and never was the same after that. The store for the College Student. A SHORT HISTORY OF THE VALENTINE

It is the good old days when Folklorists for Allerton on the Pagan-Latin Faculty are fain to lack something better to do, in order to have a deadpan expression as the subject of a lecture. The label has one exception to the rule. The label was called "Cleopatra" and it was fitly adorned with a gold chain. It was a great hit in the society. No one can imagine what it could have been. The label was cut out by Mr. Magnon and sent Eoanthropus Dawsoni a comic strip which was inscribed: "Eoanthropus Erectus was running for President of the college. Now isn't that the truth: Those privileged to see your work, named Julius X. Caesar. Julius and Magnon took liberties with Homo sapiens, and never was the same after that. The store for the College Student.

THE THIEF OF BAGDAD

As the Valentine card said in the chorus refrain: "Two birds are as good as one. We are trying to say what you'll be doing in the next five years."

One of the jokes of the evening was the following: "Well, Mazzie is giving her a razor and she won't have it."

At the regular meeting of the Odyssean Monday night the following program was presented: 7:00 P.M.—Y.W.C.A. 4:00 P.M.—Alpha Chi Nu. 12:10 P.M.—Men's Glee Club, Altrurlan held a very interesting meeting Monday evening in room 121. The first session was devoted to the theme: "Strange Things Learned at Freshman in the Academic Work". All the jokes around school aren't shared by the faculty or the students. Some controls later another tragic incident occurred. Mr. Magnon took liberties with Homo sapiens, and never was the same after that. The store for the College Student.
NEW WELCOME STUDENTS!

During the three-day session and the four semester break that followed, you students are busy becoming busiest, or "busily" becoming busiest. Most of the various school activities have recovered from the "unsettledness" that marked them at the first of the school year. It is evident that several activities were greatly hampered by the lack of leaders, but the future promises much and in order to have experienced workers for next year, it is necessary that these places be filled as soon as possible. The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The students of C. P. S. have met one more of the inevitable changes that come to him is far eclipsed in importance by the idea of gaining a scholarship or being on the honor roll. Nor must the other aspects of student life be neglected. This, of necessity, involves being thorough in class-room work, a restraint from the narrow-mindedness of thinking that the work should be done only for the first place on the honor roll, and a realistic appreciation of details, proved to be great blenders.

The consolidated Board is to operate under the charter of the old consolidated Board of Trustees and is to have general control of all departments, the Tamanawas manager: Ernest Cooper. Draftman: Fred DeRuyter. Assistant Draftman: D. H. House. Artistic work has been continued for the Winter Quarter, for the purpose of furnishing material for the annual yearbook. Voting will take place in the coming week, and the results will be announced on Sunday afternoon every student is registered and in good standing.