Northwest Conference hoop teams are now in training for the coming season, and the ideas for championship honors and the looks of the teams on the various courts look like a good year. As a rule pre-play predictions look more like the views of the man in the town. Both of these things will have equal weight.

We will pick Whitman at the last flight to win this championship. This school placed second last year with a host of great players and this year’s team is a whole outfit of high class players. There are several good players and the list of players is a good list. There are no weak spots and with the right attitude and play they look like very good chances.
