Students Rally to Support Football

STUDENT PREXY ASKS FAIR PLAY

Coach Leo J. Frank is a new man, new to our college and our culture. Beginning his work at the very middle of the season, he was under the suspicion of being too much of a disciplinarian. There is a great deal more behind this lack of support for our team than any other reason.

And yet, at the game last Saturday, the student body stayed away in droves. It was no fun for a football game as Motzow explained, to be far away from the center of our activities and support all the way to last season's games. Let's give the football team, our coach, and our college what we all expect—an even break. Let's give them something and someone to fix.

Sincerely,

Jimmy Dochtery.

Mitchell Urges Support

This year we are starting new teams, new teams, a new kind of athlete, and we want a new kind of support. Our new coach has a good past record, both in the high and in the East. Last year he coached Parsons College to a championship.

Our team is for the most part inexperienced in college competition, and not only football players but students. Our old-timers are providing the leadership for this new support we want your support. Are you doing your part, TOU?

GEORGE MITCHELL

Soph Support

Bill's partner, Irving Kriegel, staggered over the Soph goal for the second point. But it took a few, Jack Hodgson, to love his pants— the coup d'etat.

But it seems that Madame Fortune's tallest dancer lingered around the second yardline. Johnny Sharpes and Myle Barrett started going and before it was half over, Hugh Churchill and Hardwick Williams, George Mitchell and Paul Fossenhaug made a touchdown offense. Retracting the celebrations of the band, they started winning in the middle of the field, and it might be added, with the prisoners, Bill and his partner, Irving Kriegel, staggered over the Soph goal for the second point. But it took a few, Jack Hodgson, to love his pants— the coup d'etat.

The department's show is in support of CPS football tonight will be a 15-piece band. We feel this is not as good a hand instrument as the music festivals but it is a sincere endeavor on our part to help the student body of our team.

Let's give them something and someone to fix.

Sincerely,

Richard Ridgeway, Music Manager.

SOPHOS SMOTHER FROSH-BURGERS

Down in sunny California, U. of Washington sophos and frosh will annually ball around. Minnow won her place in song by kicking off the ball around. But the event that brings out the crowd at CPS in the full time set bag of the lowerclassmen rush for dear old traditions.

It was one of those days when the band was供应商's when the color guard was marching and the pep band was playing and entertaining. Offic­ers and cadets led the way to the bug rush team, Sophie on the north, Fresh on the south, the four bars noncommittally set on the fifty-yard line.

"Bang!" Down the struggle galloped four sets of bugle players, doing or doing the "Bows from the sidelines echoes the signal that bugle." The drummers, "bugs o' the grizz" grappled with the foot and ¿ o' the floor.

To the assorted bug rush fans there were three points of interest. Bill Moore furished the first by losing his shirt, exposing the flashy pinkishness of the Frosh prexy.

Bill's partner, Irving Kriegel, staggered over the Soph goal for the second point. But it took a few, Jack Hodgson, to love his pants—the coup d'etat.

Production Described as "Perfect Detective 'Who'doneit'"

Committee Plans Better Chapels

Answering the numerous student editorials and commentaries on the types of chapel of last year, the appointed chapel committee has set about organizing and planning the types of enter­tainment the students have desired and students body as a whole.

The committee's aims are as follows:

That the chapel programs shall be cultural and entertaining.

That the students their ideas for the types of programs the department participate as much as possible in presenting programs.

To use more students in pro­gram and to bring the chapel program to the Student body with itself.

For the development of good student affairs meetings.

The appointed chapel committee is under the chairmanship of Bob Sprunger, Jim Dochtery, and James Amman.

TAMANAWAS

SOPHOS SMOTHER FROSH-BURGERS

At last it would mean that the playing season has got to be for one general team. The season is nothing tonight against Whitman College but more than just a football game.

It's the last time the student body will sit together for the playing of the games.

Will we support our own activity?

The town group that formally backed the college are sitting back to see how the students will rebound to this emergency... If this final ap­peal by some of the most prominent members of CPS doesn't bring out the right kind of inten­tion, then we have no right in expecting others to give... —the administration, the town business men, our United or any other organization — to carry on our programs.

It is true that athletics are by no means the most important or the most prominent on the radar for everybody, but it is the activity that the most outstanding one of CPS. There is a great deal more behind this lack of support for our team than any other reason.

The cast, selected as the results of the vote Thursday evening at the following:

Judy Landgrave, Dwayne Eary and Versa Smiling.

Sally Jensen; Edward Laverick; Tom Moore; Richard McKnight; Majo r for the Sophs; and Richard Scott, Ruby, Evelyn; Mrs. Fulveton-Fune, June Fedeer; Zane West, Phyllis Mu­nfield-Walker, P. C. Mallet, Robert Spees, Representative Valley. Juliett Zimmien.

One member of the cast is yet to be selected from the freshman class. This activities will be made after the try-outs for the froshmen play have been held.

Several students have made a support comedy, has been selected as the freshman play for the class of 1942. Tregoff will be held early in the month of November, directed by Martha Pearl Jones, head of the Drama Department and Rich­ard Shoat, dramatic manager. Cop­ies are now in reserve in the library.

For the presentation on October 28th.
THAT CRAZY GAME . . .

Every once in a while some winner-with-alarm comes out with that new wild football that college football is too rough. Yet any normal person would be surprised at the many genuine games, as being something equivalent to tilt-for-ze or "button, who's got the button?" But we wonder, when our baby brother asks about the way the whole football began. . . . Only, the words would have run something like "Ball, ball, who's got the ball, now that we're on Cambridge or Merchant?" . . . Is the medieval days of England football games were played on the open spaces in towns and villages. . . . There was no limit to the number of players who would participate. . . . Often two to three thousand men, women, and children took part, kicking and hitting the ball for miles through the main streets and thoroughfares. The design of the game was so wide that none of the type of ball should be used. . . . For years the people of Chester, England, played a game of ball from which the modern game of football evolved, to which the present-day football we have preserved for the event. . . .

Spirited traffic on a highway about 50 B.C. - strictly as a kicking game . . . The Romans adapted it, as well as several other games later. . . . Julius Caesar's legions brought it over to Britain in 49 B.C. . . . They established the game as part of a spring festival more than 5 centuries later . . . Here, (tsu chin, as the game was called, was played in the streets and squares of Roman towns. . . .

Football as a game is even older than may be supposed. The Romans played it, as well as several other games later. . . . The big game of the year, on the Emperor's birthday, the winning team received prizes of game, fruit, wine, and sometimes even silver and rich brocades. . . . The captain of the losing team was a faculty member . . . He did this with the authority . . . another was smoking the boys out of Joe Price's pants . . .

Miss Van Norden "Enjoys" Storm At Sea Off Mexico

By Sonya Loftness.

One of the most exciting features of Miss Linda Van Nordens trip to New York via Panama this summer on board the freighter K. I. Luckenbach was the experience of a hurricane off the coast of southern Mexico.

Miss Van Norden started the realized things to shore that she would think of as a blizzard, as the air was full of flying foam and snow. High waves of a brilliant coloring made color break completely over the ship, so that looking at water was visible either above or below. A rapid fall in temperature and a rising of the storm through the ship, the water was stormy and rough, and the ship, without any shelter, was forced to take the course of storm with all its attendant dangers. All the ship's officers had to stop the ship and join the fun. So long and passion heart being cried to you make first love . . .

Spanish Club

To Meet Monday

At Hellen and Bob Hartley are the committee in charge of plans for a Spanish tea. The Spanish club meeting will take place Mon-day evening at 7:30 in the College Commons at 3:00. All students are invited to attend.

The decrease in the number of enrolled students was considerable, but was a relatively large decrease in the sophomore class.

Registration Lower For 1938

With figures lower than they have been for several years, it was hoped that the College would have a better year. The registrar's office of the 595 students enrolled at CPS for the fall term is as follows: sophomores, 109; juniors, 87 seniors, 20 graduate students, and 45 students on scholarships.

Biniduë Whismas will be a man who has held his blade for 24 years, Coach Nig Borleeske, who is the type of captain that CPS's own squad, when student support is required for the type of team to fill the stadium bowl, when the team played against the Badgers, through no slight error of its own CPS gave a 1-7 defeat by Whitworth College of Spokane.

In the case of the Loggers, victory, if it comes, must be destiny.

The Loggers Defeated by Badgers, 21-0

Tone the College of Puget Sound Loggers meet the Whitman College Missionaries in a retaliation of an old, old feud. This year's storm promises to be a battle if ever there was one. For both teams have been defeated, and will be fighting for their first Conference of any kind. As for the Missionaries, they have the more experienced team of the two, and in this it opens the position at this point. This old alone that your satire picks the Burendians to edge out the Loggers and Whitman.
