A group of campus residents who have studied the effects of war were polled by the Tacoma News Tribune in March of 1937 to determine their attitudes toward the question of national suicide in the event of war. The poll was conducted among the students of the University of Puget Sound, with a total of 312 respondents, 178 of whom were male and 131 of whom were female.

The majority of the students, both men and women, said that they would fight if the continental United States were attacked. It is interesting to note that the majority of those who indicated they would fight were in favor of war. However, the number of those who indicated they would not fight was much smaller than the number of those who indicated they would fight.

The poll was conducted by the Tacoma News Tribune and results were published in the newspaper. The poll asked respondents if they would be willing to fight if the United States were attacked by any European power or by Japan. The majority of the students, both men and women, said that they would fight if attacked by any European power or by Japan.

Balenese Dancer Exotic Looitics

By Sonya Latuff

Wealth is the focus of the Balinese dancing. This ancient art form is performed by women of the highest social status. It is a dance of elegance and grace, with movements that are both fluid and precise. The dancers wear intricate costumes, adorned with gold and silver jewelry. Their hands and arms are a key element of the dance, as they express the emotions of the performance.

The performance of the Balinese dancers is a testament to the rich cultural heritage of the island. Through their movements, they convey stories of myth, history, and tradition. The audience is transported to another world, one where time seems to stand still.

Despite the changes brought by modernity, the Balinese dancers continue to uphold their traditional art form. They are a symbol of the resilience and perseverance of their culture. Their performance is a reminder of the importance of preserving our cultural heritage for future generations.

MEN LIKE INFORMANTS: A FINAL OUTCOME OF SURVEY

Do you prefer a formal dance, semi-formal, or informal? A CPS survey of data on the activities of men students shows that, when asked to choose between a formal dance, semi-formal, or informal, most students prefer informal dances. The survey results indicate that the majority of students would rather attend an informal dance than a formal one. This preference may be due to the relaxed atmosphere and the opportunity for more personal interaction.

The survey also found that the location of the dance is an important factor in students' preferences. Those who prefer informal dances are more likely to choose a dance held at a popular location, such as a local bar or restaurant.

On the other hand, students who prefer formal dances are more likely to choose a dance held at a school-sponsored event, such as a dance in the cafeteria or a dance at a local community center.

The survey results suggest that the preferences of men students are influenced by a variety of factors, including the location of the dance and the atmosphere of the event.

ENTERTAIN TO EACH OTHER: Prof. Discusses Stage Fright

The question of stage fright was discussed by Prof. John Johnson. He explained that stage fright is a common problem among performers and that it is often due to a lack of confidence. He emphasized the importance of preparation and practice in overcoming stage fright. He also highlighted the role of feedback and support in building confidence.

Prof. Johnson ended his discussion by emphasizing that stage fright is not a sign of weakness but rather a natural reaction to the pressure of performing. He concluded by encouraging performers to view stage fright as an opportunity to grow and develop as performers.

Dr. Tonkinson Says Skiers Are Good

“Virtually everyone has the same idea about skiing: it’s a good thing,” said Dr. Ted K. Jones, athletic director for the University of Oregon, Saturday night, in a talk to the ski team. “But, in order to have a really good ski program, we must have a good ski team. And there was no better ski team in the country than ours.”

Juniors in the upper class black and dress of Karl­hoff, Schilling, and Berendt, as well as the paintings of Karl­hoff, Berendt, and Jack Hamm, were provided by the exhibit of the ski team. “The theme of the exhibit,” said Dr. Jones, “is to show that skiing is a very attractive sport.”

“Natural history is the key word for the ski team,” said Dr. Jones. “How can they ski, if they ski? If they can’t ski, they won’t be in the exhibit.”

Skiing is one of the sports that has been practiced in the Northwest for many years. “To the ‘76ers’ Ski Team, skiing is a very attractive sport.”

It is the job of the ski club to hold the meeting every evening at Fellowship Hall. The theme of the exhibit, as Dr. Jones said, is to show that skiing is a very attractive sport.

W.A.A. SHORTS

The introduction basketball game in the annual tournament was a huge success, with many a comment about a new type of player who defeated both the opponent team and the jubilant audience. A local Paper Sticks player, the best local handles we’ve seen in a long time, especially considering that he hasn’t played for two years. Local fans play a great game, and I think it was a huge success, and as a result no comparison of relative strength is available.

The tentative Loggers line-up for tonight’s tilts follows: Frey, woods, George Mitchell and Tom Cross, both one year let­termen, against Harry, W. Witter­by and Bert McLaughlin, both two year lettermen, and center, Norm Walker, freshman. Probable reserves to see action include: Wally Starkly, Frank Ma­ton, and Tom Boldt. Dowey Wood and Jim Hinde, both three year let­termen, and Ed Brooks at center and guard.

In the recent game last Fri­day against the Butchfield To­chers, the Vikings got off to a good start. A score of 15 to 5 before Bert McLaughlin hit the basket winner with a pair of free throws. Joe Moses hit the driving shot in the first half of the game with two medium long field goals for Butchfield. Moses outscored the Loggers half 19 to 9. Harry Wer­ kel and W. T. Johnson, both field goal for the Loggers with a short driving shot and one from the forward of the way through the game. Joe worked back with W. Witterby in the second half, but the Loggers tied the game with Pettigrew and Moses, continued to control the CPC’s by scoring. The game ended 35 to 26 in Butchfield. Moses and Pettigrew were high pointees.
