The results that go 'round and 'round in the social and radio turntable sport of the day, bring a report from over the sea, 1913, of course. What does it mean? It proves that America and Canada's entrenchments are stronger than ever before. These two large blocks of people, the west coast and the east, have four million more citizens to rely on than before. And the people of both nations are ready to fight. The axis of the world has changed. The United States has a new ally in the Philippines, and Japan will be more powerful than ever. The future of the world is in the hands of these two nations. They must be prepared to meet any challenge that comes their way. The world is watching.
