If Students Want a Six-Column Trail
They Must Show Interest in Advertisers

A CONSCIOUSNESS of the need for cooperation and college publicizing has been shown this year has entered the CPS student body and faculty as a whole. The origin is obvious: ground breaking for the student union building, plans for a library and other new buildings and facilities, the importance of advertising building of funds are some of the more immediate occurrences of the college and the students have been among them. Attention is focused on expansion and upon the various phases which can be taken into consideration. Students are urged to contribute their efforts to this cause.

Now, with a staff and adviser ambitious to enlarge the weekly paper to a six-column publication with additional columns for the Theta Phi Alpha, the Student Faculty Council, the Tri-Eta Sigma and the St. Anthony on the staff, the college interests are necessarily staked. Donations are what is needed. That the student body and faculty realize this is evident in the advertising matter which appears in their own college paper is all that is asked.

The survival of the Trail is dependent upon its advertisers and in turn their advertising depends upon CPS patronage. Therefore, if the college is really interested in cooperation as it supposes, will CPS patronize the advertisers who support its paper?

Men look to the Trail to decide on the places to purchase their clothes and clothing. Women will select their dress shops from the columns of their college paper, and everyone will instruct his friends and parents on bakery, hardware and grocery stores from the files of his weekly publication. That is just good business policy.

Newcomers to the advertising of the Trail are important and sensible. Perhaps the attraction draws to this phase of college unity will bear some fruit.

It's a safe rule to take a person's own estimate of himself, and then the opinion of him, shake ‘em up together, and strike an average.

"WANTED—Bright boy for bakery. Must be well bred, or the world won't understand him; a good mixer and honest in handling the dough. One from the East preferred."

Departments Overly Self-centered
Says Student—What We Need Is Cooperation

Editor's Note: This letter was received in answer to the editorial in last week’s Trail on the lack of student support at CPS games in comparison to those of Pacific Lutheran.

The courteous criticism of this kind is welcome by the Trail, and the writer who dedicates his viewpoints is invited to have them in the box outside the Trail office.

Dear Trail:

In response to the article in the last Trail on the CPS and PL differences in other regards, it seems necessary to note that CPS is not a unit at all in PLC. We are divided into highly organized groups and societies such as sororities and fraternities, Killington, fraternities, etc.

Although these have an integral part in school life, they should not be ranked in extent to which that the student is forgotten. Then, too, it is evident that each department is too solitary and self-contained. The music and movement is the jealous of the athletic, the drama department is not interested in the campus. If we should stress cooperation instead of individual gain, we might get somewhere. If we could forget the little outside interests and become interested in the world and everything outside our school, we would stand a good chance of making CPS the name that it is entitled to be.

Mysterious Dorm Newcomer Labeled as Beautiful Dummy

Aggie is the new girl at Anderson hall. She's a beautiful blonde, with blue eyes, and sapphire blue. She cannot be the most beautiful girl in the dorm, Aggie is by far the most beautiful girl there.

As a newcomer as lovely as Aggie would naturally make the girls look to their laurels, you say, but Aggie is different—she's only a place-of-Farris dummy.

Mildred Blake and Evelyn Hamner, residents of Anderson Hall were terrorized one night when they returned from the library to find a pair of legs dangling in the breeze just outside their window. Some refuge from a quick thought. But, no. It was only Aggie suspended from a headboard cord.

The offender didn't wave but she couldn't—for it was only Aggie.

And why doesn't someone take the poor dummy back to her maker and get her repaired and hung in the dormitory? Rhodes department store window-show for the sake of peace and safety? We maybe because everyone just wanted to see what Aggie was going to say next.

Campus Jottings

Betty Jane Foley, Tom Hill, Anna Shuman, and Phil Raymond, and the "statesmen"... Anna Louise Greer, New Bobbidi, and Wynn Sivers, were at a party for sweaters for Christmas. Nmez, Stamey and Anita Wogos wear flawlessly as pins in a result of Dick Brown and Miss Champ joints up with the phil."

Jeanette Hart apologized promptly and the right was handled. The ball bounced into a room she expected to be her own, so she rang the bell until we have completed the objections that should shape before it is correct to appealing position.

The catchy pull out a pen and paper, scribble unforgot for a few minutes, and then converse together till they are in complete agreement that the time is announced at 2.6 seconds. Increments then clocks this until the apparatus which the writer, who holds, and when time is up cries, "Ok, have you finished?"

"Spike," and the ball lands on the team and also sets a new high. Women that continually circulate angles with the floor. Furthermore, they must certainly know how to compute the speed of a falling body.

All of these computations have been in the able hands of DX, DY and Increment. When the ball has returned to the faculty, DX and DY cry "Swing," which is correct until we have completed the objections that should shape before it is correct to appealing position.

Three people pull out a pen and paper, scribble unforgot for a few minutes, and then converse together till they are in complete agreement that the writer, who holds, and when time is up cries "Ok, have you finished?"

It's a safe rule to take a person's own estimate of himself, and then the opinion of him, shake ‘em up together, and strike an average.

bookstore will make as many as there are ads, which may be absolutely no profit on ads and the Contemporary the run of ups which have been the feature of intramural play all season.

Alpha Chi Nu badminton team appears at present to be on its way to the 1947 intramural championship.

In the first match of the season, the men crucial for those White and Green boys, they handled the favored Delta Kappa Phi team a 2 to 1 in six game. Al Stoney opened the play, taking Tom Hill in three sets to start what looked like another Orange and Black championship match. But the Chi Nu doubles team of Arnold and Markus defied Champ and Hine to make it even up.

The third and deciding doubles saw Jolley and Beck defeat Ted Halko and Ransome in a tight match to give the Chi Nu their margin of victory. The Independents swamped the Zetes 5 to 1 and the Nu Chi stopped the Omicron for the same score in the other matches as the season opened.

Tuesday the Chi Nu handed the bag to the Zetes another setback while the Independents were stopping the Nu Chi's. The other match saw Delta Pi Ombrone again go down to defeat.
