Students Attend In-All-College Theater Affair

Everyone who thinks he has been entertained must visit the theater and enjoy the performance. The Student Union has made it possible for the college to have a wonderful all-campus tournament at the theater.

Among the co-fatigues, John Kimball, a splendid star performer is prominent, while photographs and pictures, and home movies will be the entertainment provided for the enjoyment of student bodies. Cards for the theater are available at the dealers' counter of libraries, who have a special privilege.

The program for the theater is as follows: A. E. M.

Assisting the chairman are Florence Potts, Woodrow Wilson, Katherine Hager, Ida Grimes and Jeanette Walker.

Thursday Chapel Programs Show Freshmen Difficulties of College Life

Nearly every student remembers how hard it was to make the transition from high school to college. This was especially so for the majority of the Associated Students of the C. F. & P. A., who are now confronting the same problem that their college classmates are also facing.

"How do I make the transition from high school to college?" was the first question asked by the College of the Puget Sound, gave way to a series of articles written by various faculty members and students on the subject of adjusting to college life. The articles were invited in order to help students make the transition as smoothly as possible.

The articles were written by a number of different faculty members and students, and were intended to help students understand the challenges and opportunities that come with college life. The articles covered topics such as adjusting to a new environment, making new friends, and managing time.

The articles were published in the College of the Puget Sound, with the first one being published on November 15, 1927. The articles were read by many students and were widely praised for their helpfulness.

The articles were published in a series of weekly installments, with each installment covering a different aspect of college life. The articles were well-received by the students, and many of them found them to be very helpful.
