Draft Men Urged To Clarify Positions

War has come to the College of Puget Sound. According to the latest announcements from the War Department, Puget Sound will be a part of the large-scale training and education of over 17 years of age will be some phase of the war. In connection with this situation, Dean Regester has appointed Mr. Miller, to complete the draft card of all men enrolled in school for the services of the board.

"To create a very serious situation," commented Mr. Regester, "we believe that all able-bodied men should be ready to serve at any time. If they are not, they may be called to the reserves."

A military service council under the leadership of Dean Regester, Mr. Stuard, and Mr. Miller, is making plans to serve all students, as well as the military in selecting officers and men willing to come."

Representatives of each of the four branches of the armed forces, army, navy, marine and coast guard, will be here on November 17 and will appear in an assembly of the students and staff members to inform all about the situation and to plan for this meeting. The purpose of this assembly will be to inform all about the situation and to plan for this meeting.

The representatives of each branch are: Mr. Regester, Mr. Stuard, and Mr. Miller. They will be here on November 17 and will appear in an assembly of the students and staff members to inform all about the situation and to plan for this meeting.

New Students Come From Many States

This year more than in previous years, students have extended their studies across the United States. The college's furthest south from which a transcript is entered is in Florida. New students from distant schools are from the University of Denver in Denver, Colorado; the University of Iowa, Northern Illinois College of Education, Marquette, Michigan; Adult Training College, Kentucky, and Harding Junior College, Texas.

Students enrolled at the College of Puget Sound in cooperation with the past ten years have shown an increasing interest in the college, with the average over the past ten years being three.

The largest number of transfer students come from the University of Oregon. Washington have three, and Idaho, two, and Idaho, two.

Homecoming Committee Makes Plans

This year the plans for Homecoming have been altered from those of previous years in that the celebration will be held on the Friday and Saturday, November 6 and 7.

Another thing has been added to the fact that the student enrollment is no larger and more engaged than in previous years.

Students Popularize Hello Custom; Freshmen Urged to Take Advantage

Friendliness is a tradition at CPS. Every freshman - male or female - has a "hello" as his or her mascot. Many of the college oldsters, outside of the bag-and-push intramural contests, have adopted this custom as part of their campus. Professors set a welcome example by speaking to nearly every student and Dr. Thompson's ability to call so many students by their first names is one which we may well copy. However, this friendliness isn't kept up entirely by the administration. When the present junior class were freshmen, they were greeted in the same friendly manner by their upperclassmen, and they acquired the idea, too, that ours should be a "hello" campus. The walk from the student union building to Jones Hall could very well be dubbed "hello" walk. Uphe]].aese, keep that tradition alive, and remember that friendly messages allow by saying "hello" to everyone you pass, anywhere on the campus, be it in class, in the yard or on the street. Help keep up that spirit of friendliness by making our "hello" tradition YOURS.

School Spirit at CPS Zooms As Class of '46 Gets Started

School spirit at CPS is definitely on the rise. The turn-out at the football game yesterday is the first concrete indicator of how things are going. The opening day there has been a different, more lively feeling. The campus is more excited in activities and more determined than ever to make the coming year fly for CPS.

For this "shut in the arm" the college has two things to thank. First, in the student body, and second, in the guidance of the faculty.

First, the freshmen, this year's junior class, are not a "shut in the arm". They are giving the college more exposure and are always ready to lend a helping hand in every way possible. Many of them are on the sports teams and are ready to work hard for the college.

Second, the faculty is working hard toinnacle the enthusiasm and spirit that are characteristic of a college.

Thus, the Class of '46 is off to a great start.

R. O. T. C. Unit Suggested to Keep Enlisted Reservists in College

To the date of this writing, a large number of men of the College of Puget Sound have enlisted or have been conscripted as reserve officers in certain United States. Many are expecting to remain in the college for the full four years until the end of their conscription, thus making this an objective they are taking courses which many of them would not ordinarily select. The increase in the number of military and physics students to demonstrate that fact.

Already on the national and state-wide scene there are predictions that the College of Puget Sound and other colleges and universities will be taken in by the sea and army. Freshman and sophomore terms are not at all to be neglected, so do they make an infantry officer, and it doesn't take four years to study these two courses.

Each college and university has its own problems and its own solution. The college, if it wishes to keep these students, must offer courses which are not usually included in the regular curriculum. The course is essentially a step in the right direction, but many colleges have programs of units in which the reservist receives practice and instruction in military discipline and leadership which will be of more importance to when he is in the service than the principles of higher mathematics or physical science.

This can be done at the College of Puget Sound as it has been done in other similar institutions. If successful, it would well be worth the trouble that the college would be taking toward the war effort, for the same time many should be more certain of the continued attendance in college of these enlisted reservists.

Water Fountains Raise Comments

Dear Editor:

The case of "Have You Ever Seen Your Neighbor?"

I think we'd all be a lot luckier if more people really knew their neighbors.

There is little or no contact between the members of the same class, and it is impossible to get to know each other or get along with each other if there is not a personal interest in the well-being of the other person.

More Essentials

There was a great deal more enthusiasm among young men of college age 20 years ago than there is today in our country. The war was either a great adventure or a great calamity. It was a matter of life or death, and we were all involved.

There was little or no concern among the members of the after-war period. We could not realize the significance of what had taken place.

The situation today demands that each man make the most of his time and do the best he can.

The cooperation of all is necessary.

Sincerely,
